CANADA WILL DISBAND TWO VODOO UNITS

OTTAWA (UPI)—Two of Canada's five CF-101 Voodoo squadrons will be disbanded "to improve operational efficiency and promote economy," Associate Defence Minister Lucien Carlin announced today.

Aircraft from squadrons at Ottawa and North Bay, Ont., will be absorbed by the squadrons at Bagotville, Que., and Chatham, N.B., and the fifth squadron at Comox, B.C., will maintain its present strength. In addition, a small number of aircraft will be used to form a reserve.

Logs 'Corralled' by Wind and Tide

Combination of extreme high tide and driving southwest winds overnight literally gathered up most of the loose logs in Juan de Fuca Strait and herded them into the natural "corral" at Horseshoe Bay, Beacon Hill Park. Logs are all strays from different areas, as no log boom has broken up in the strait since early December. Winds averaged 30 miles per hour, with gusts at 50 m.p.h.

13-Year-Old Cooped Up With Slayers

Mental disorders can often be cured or alleviated if treatment is given when the patients are young—yet there are few mental health facilities for children.

Times reporter Leslie Millin interviewed social workers, psychologists, psychiatrists and patients' families to prepare this three-part series on the predicament of Victoria children stricken with mental disorders.

By LESLIE MILLIN

A Victoria foster mother last year had to make a personal plea to Health Minister Eric Martin to have her foster son moved from one ward of Essondale Mental Hospital to another.

The 13-year-old boy had been confined in a ward for the criminally insane—with murderers, rapists and other dangerously deranged criminals. He was put there because Essondale has no wards for children.

Jerry is 14 now, still in Essondale, and still in a ward with adult patients.

He is one of many Victoria children whose chances of recovery from mental disease are reduced by a lack of facilities for children.

Jerry is in the unluckiest category of all.

He is a psychotic, and there are no facilities specifically for psychotic children anywhere in the province.

For a Victoria child with a mental disorder—the outlook is poor. Emotionally disturbed children—there are an estimated 1,400 in Victoria—can go to Sevenoaks here. It has 16 beds.

Retarded children who are not too seriously retarded can attend the special school here, and the Elford Occupation Centre. Badly retarded children must go to Woodlands School on the

Columbia Accord Reached

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin today presented the federal cabinet with yet another B.C.-Ottawa agreement on Columbia River development.

The latest draft agreement deals with the terms under which B.C.'s share of downstream Columbia power benefits would be sold to the Americans, rather than returned for use in B.C.

Mr. Martin said he expected the agreement to receive speedy cabinet approval.

The external affairs minister described the proposed agreement as a supplement to an agreement reached last summer between B.C. and the federal government. That agreement outlined the responsibilities borne by both the federal and B.C. governments in carrying out terms of the three-year-old Canada-U.S. Columbia development treaty.

The "downstream benefit" agreement is rumored to contain provision for payment by the U.S. of a lump sum of about $400 million to cover the costs of the dams to be built on the B.C. section of the international river.

The B.C. dams would control the flows of Columbia water to the U.S., enabling U.S. generating installations on the river to increase their electricity output. The U.S. also would pay $64.4 million for flood control benefits.

DAY AND NIGHT

Mr. Martin met all day Wednesday and Thursday—and into both nights, too—with B.C. Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston and B.C. Attorney-General Robert Bonner, and their advisors, to draw up the agreement.

Mr. Martin said today that the B.C. cabinet also would consider the supplementary agreement. It is also expected to approve the pact soon.

Endorsement of the agreement by both B.C. and Ottawa will clear the way for final agreement on the development between Canada and the U.S.

Mr. Martin and B.C. representatives will meet with U.S. spokesmen here on Monday.

Diplomatic Ties With U.S. Cut

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Broadcasting Company said today it had received a report that two Americans had been lynched by a Panamanian mob in Chiriqui, Panama.

PANAMA CITY (UPI)—Mobs battled U.S. army troops along the canal zone border today and Panamanian President Robert F. Chiari threatened to renounce all treaties with the United States, presumably including use of the vitally strategic Panama Canal.

PANAMA CITY (AP)—Five Panamanians were reported killed and 96 wounded in new gun fighting today with U.S. troops on the border of the U.S. Canal Zone. This brought the death toll in the violence which erupted Thursday night to 15, including three U.S. soldiers.

Personnel of the U.S. Embassy evacuated the chancery building offices in the wake of the violent fighting. Carl Davis, embassy public affairs officer, said. Davis said secret documents were burned.

Panama President Robert Chiari prepared to address the nation after a telephone talk with U.S. President Johnson in Washington. Chiari already has accused the United States of aggression and has suspended diplomatic relations.

The Panama radio carried repeated pleas to the people to return to their homes and thus prevent further bloodshed.

A statement broadcast at 12:15 p.m. EST described the situation in the capital as "tran-

Public Transportation Out

There was no public transportation in Panama, where an air of tension still prevailed on a day of mourning for those killed.

The fighting flared Thursday night when Panamanian students tried to plant their country's flag in the U.S.-controlled Canal Zone. They acted after U.S. students raised the flag in defiance of American officials.

Chiara demanded that the Organization of American States launch an immediate investigation.

He vowed "to obtain justice for Panama once and for all" before whatever international bodies are necessary.

President Johnson was being kept advised of the situation. The U.S. Army said its casualties occurred in the vicinity of the Tivoli Guest House in the Canal Zone, a target of persistent sniper fire from Panamanians.

When the U.S. casualties mounted to four wounded, an army statement said, "the order was given to return the sniper fire."

The army selected trained marksmen "for carefully re-

Slayer's Children Lose Mother

VANCOUVER (CP)—Five little children who will lose their father to the hangman March 17, have now been abandoned by their mother, social welfare officials disclosed today.

The five are Gary, 6, Mary Ann 5, Denny 4, Kathy 3, and a baby boy, not quite two, who officials said were born into a fractured life of poverty, misery and heartbreak which resulted from the marriage union of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Meeker.

Meeker, 30, is to be hanged March 17 for the brutal slaying of 12-year-old Alice Mathers of Mission last June. Their mother, attractive, 26-year-old Lillian Meeker, supported the children on social welfare after leaving her husband 21 months ago.

But today the little Meeker children don't even have their mother.

Officials disclosed that she abandoned them in a rented home at Cranbrook two days before Christmas. She left a handwritten note with a neighbor saying:

"Please call the welfare to take the kids. I can't keep up with it all now."

U.S. Accused Of Aggression

NEW YORK (AP)—Aquilino Boyd, the Panamanian ambassador to the United Nations, today accused the United States of aggression against his country.

Arriving at Kennedy Airport, Boyd said Panama plans to appeal to the United Nations and to the Organization of American States.

Discussing the rioting at the Canal Zone Thursday night, Boyd said:

"This situation is very, very serious. I am ashamed of American democracy. We are the victims of a terrible aggression. The people of the United States are not properly informed of the situation in Panama."

Despite the gravity, he held out hope for a settlement "if people act in good faith" and suggested four actions for the United States:

1. Take all measures to stop the rioting.
2. Apologize to the Panamanian government.
3. Make proper indemnification for all damage to property and persons.
4. Work out an agreement which will be basically fair to the people of Panama.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Organization of American States called an emergency meeting of its council today to consider the Panamanian crisis.

IN THE TEETH OF FAMOUS PROFILES

Though BB Tends to Pout Her Mandible Just Lovely

By JAMES CALOGERO

BOSTON (AP)—Dr. Harvey Peck, 26 and single, is a girl watcher with a cause: He's looking for the perfect face.

Peck has been studying girls' faces for a year. He still has a year to go on his project. Nonetheless, Peck has reached some tentative conclusions, to wit:

"American and international beauties have a tendency toward a toothy, full profile, rather than a straight profile."

A "toothy, full profile" is sort of a pout. Perfect examples of the type, says Peck, are Sophia Loren, Brigitte Bardot and Doris Day.

They lack the orthognathic profile, he says. On the other hand, there's nothing whatever wrong with the vertical and forward growth of their mandibles.

Or, to put it another way, they don't have straight-line profiles, but their jaw bones are lovely, just lovely.

Now Peck wants it understood that a pretty pout is not a prerequisite for beauty. For example, there's Grace Kelly, Elizabeth Taylor and Debbie Reynolds. They have straight-line profiles.

EXAMINES 25 WOMEN
So far, Peck has examined the faces of 25 women. None of the aforementioned lovelies was included, but he concentrates on recognized beauties such as models and beauty contest winners.

This is serious work for Peck, a resident orthodontist at the Boston University Medical Centre. He says results of his study, titled "a photographic and cephalometric study of facial symmetry and balance," may provide orthodontists with a guide to the ideal face.

Peck says it's possible to change the lower face profile of a child up to the age of 14 through orthodontic therapy. It is common practice, for example, to give a child with buck teeth a straight profile.

In addition, appliances may be used to alter vertical and horizontal growth direction of a child's jaw bones—the key to facial shape.

Peck hopes his research will produce a master chart that "will tell how well balanced are the faces of these people others look up to as beautiful."

Draft Issue Rears in U.K. As 3 Crises Strain Army

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—Conscription has become an issue again in Westminster and neither political party is particularly happy about it.

A trio of recent crises—Cyprus, Aden and Malaysia—proved that Britain's 180,000-man, all-volunteer army is under considerable strain in terms of resources and manpower.

To begin with, army units are under strength and inadequately staffed with technicians. Despite a massive publicity campaign waged since conscription ended in 1960, the quality and quantity of recruits have left gaps in the line.

With the conflict against Indonesia in North Borneo threatening to develop into a protracted guerrilla war, Britain has told NATO that she may be forced to withdraw troops from Germany to meet her Far East commitments.

The British Army of the Rhine already is weaker than most NATO strategists would like.

Some form of conscription will be necessary if Britain is to go on policing such trouble spots as British Guiana, Swaziland and Hong Kong as well as the more explosive areas like Cyprus and North Borneo. There just aren't enough Tommies to go round.

But Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home would be loathe to reintroduce such an unpopular measure during an election year and Labor Leader Harold Wilson is equally opposed to such a move. What is the answer?

The Conservatives now must hope that the United Nations, or some other policing agency, will step in to hold the ring opponents in Cyprus and settle matters in Malaysia before both commitments drain all the British reserves.

PILOTS BOTH SURVIVE AS TWO JETS COLLIDE

COLD LAKE, Alta. (CP)—Two CF-104 Starfighters collided about 4½ miles west of here today while flying formation in a routine training flight. One plane crashed and the other returned safely to the base. Both pilots escaped injury.

FO Brian L. Smith, 24, of Winnipeg, parachuted to safety when his plane went out of control. FO Myron D. Johnson, 33, of LeRoy, Sask., steered his crippled plane back to Cold Lake, 140 miles northeast of Edmonton.

TWO DIE, ONE HURT

4-Year-Old Flees As Mother Slain

SASKATOON (CP)—"He killed my mommy, Pat and Dale."

Four-year-old Donald Wourn was describing the bludgeoning deaths of his mother, Mrs. Margaret Wourn, 38, and Mrs. Patricia Littlechief, 17, in a west Saskatoon home Thursday night.

Three hours earlier he had dashed breathless through the rear door of the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cumpstone with word of the tragedy.

Police said Mrs. Wourn and Mrs. Littlechief were clubbed to death with an axe. They said Mrs. Wourn's son, Dale, 7, was in serious condition in hospital with multiple skull fractures.

Hospital officials said Dale, apparently found unconscious outside the house, was under the care of a neurosurgeon and there was a possibility he would undergo surgery.

A man was taken into custody 1½ hours after the deaths were reported.

Two other persons in the house were not hurt. They were Mrs. Littlechief's son, Kim, 1, and a female relative of Mrs. Wourn whose name was not available.

HEARD A RATTLE

Mr. Cumpstone said he and his wife were eating supper when they heard a rattle at the front door.

"I looked out and saw no one. Then Donald came tearing in the back door without knocking. He said all the people over there were killed with an axe," he said.

Mr. Cumpstone said he called the police and went next door but the police had already arrived and a few people had gathered.

Police put Donald and Kim in the Cumpstones' custody. Donald greeted reporters with: "You should go next door. Mommy got chopped with an axe in the eye."

Mrs. Cumpstone said "Donald said he hid under the table."

The Cumpstones said the Wourns moved into their Saskatoon home Dec. 30 but knew nothing about their neighbors. An earlier report the Wourns were from Alberta could not be substantiated.

mainland—when they can get past its 800-name waiting list.

But for psychotic children there is only jail or Essondale. Jerry has been in both.

His foster mother describes Jerry as small for his age, shy-looking, with a thin face set off by big dark eyes.

Jerry was an illegitimate child, adopted by his foster parents when he was five.

He was a neighborhood and school problem early, a burglar who had stolen more than $1,000 in cash before he was 12.

Jerry was sent to Brannen Lake School after he was caught breaking into an apartment house.

He tried to commit suicide there, and went on a hunger strike. Jerry was sent home, because his problem was recognized as a mental one.

Too Damaged

Sevenoaks school for emotionally disturbed children turned him down as too seriously damaged for them to help.

After another series of burglaries, the court ordered a psychiatric report. Jerry was sent to Crease Clinic, diagnosed as schizophrenic with homicidal tendencies, and committed to Essondale.

"The head of Crease Clinic tried to get us to give up Jerry entirely, to sign him over as a ward of the government, but we wouldn't do it," says his foster mother.

A few months later, when she found that Jerry had been transferred to the ward for the criminally insane, his foster mother tried to have him moved out of it.

She had to take her case to the minister of health before Jerry was moved.

Nowhere Else

Jerry has escaped from Essondale "a few times," says his foster mother, but he is sent back each time.

"Essondale isn't anxious to have him," says his foster mother, "but there's nowhere else for him."

"If we only knew he was getting treatment. We could put up with anything if we knew he was being treated."

Robert Dudley, executive director of the Victoria branch of the Canada Mental Health Association, sums it up:

"For most children with mental disorders, facilities are inadequate."

"For psychotic children, they are none-existent."

alongside an American flag. They had the protection of Canal police.

The U.S. students had hoisted their banner in defiance of instructions from the U.S. governor of the zone. He had ordered the dual flying of Panama and U.S. flags at selected sites in the zone in accord with an agreement reached between Panama and the United States last year recognizing Panama's titular sovereignty over the zone. He had banned flags at schools, the U.S. district court in Ancon and several other cities. U.S. flags were permitted in classrooms.

Ransack Buildings, Set Fires

Police directed the students back into Panamanian territory and along the route they smashed street lights and overturned garbage cans.

Then—under cover of darkness—mobs of Panamanians invaded the zone. They upset autos, ransacked buildings, set fires and stoned the Canal Zone police.

At 8 p.m., when the situation got out of hand, the army was called in. Gen. Andrew P. O'Meara, commander in chief of the U.S. Southern Command with headquarters in the zone, put the area under military control.

A proclamation to that effect was broadcast in Spanish and English for more than an hour from a plane overhead.

At 8:30 p.m. U.S. troops arrived in force to assist the Canal Zone police.

Casualties were caused by persistent sniper fire at soldiers protecting the Canal Zone in the vicinity of the Tivoli Guest House near the centre of downtown Balboa.

"As the casualties mounted to four wounded the order was given to return the sniper fire," the army said. "The army selected trained marksmen for carefully directed return fire. A fifth soldier was seriously wounded in the head and a sixth was wounded before sniper fire ceased."

Panamanian Ambassador Augusto Guillermo Arango left Washington for Panama City, but there was no indication his government would recall other diplomatic personnel.

President Johnson was given a series of briefings on the developments in advance of a presidential statement expected during the day.

NEW president of Greater Victoria Citizenship Council is Vivian Shoemaker, who retired recently as managing director of the YM-YWCA. In his new capacity Mr. Shoemaker will attend the swearing-in of 17 new Canadian citizens at Victoria Courthouse Wednesday at 10 a.m. The Citizenship Council will welcome the new Canadians at a coffee party in the YWCA after the ceremony.

New Grain Elevator?

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—A second grain elevator may be in the offing for North Vancouver. He did not identify the company.

"The two presidents agreed there had to be a stop to the violence in the Canal Zone."

OTTAWA (UPI)—Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier will be named high commissioner to London within the next few days, it was learned today.

Authoritative sources said the appointment would set off a general shuffle of top Canadian diplomatic posts "with a definite bicultural flavor."

Informants indicated the latter comment specified the appointment of Chevrier, a French-speaking Roman Catholic, to London and the naming of an English-speaking Protestant as ambassador to Paris.

The prime candidate for Paris appears to be Charles Ritchie, now Canadian ambassador to Washington.

Indications are the top-level shuffle within the external affairs department also will involve:

—Appointment of Norman A. Robertson, external affairs under-secretary for five years, as ambassador to Washington.

The promotion of deputy-under-secretary Marcel Cadieux to under-secretary.

—Elevation of A. E. Ritchie, senior assistant under-secretary, to Cadieux' job.

HEES

Dashing George Hees To Head Stock Exchanges

MONTREAL (CP) — George Hees, affable, handsome cabinet minister in the government of former prime minister Diefenbaker, has been appointed president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges.

The announcement was made here Thursday night by the boards of the two exchanges.

Mr. Hees, perhaps one of the most popular men to hold a portfolio in the Progressive Conservative administration, is expected to begin his new duties April 1.

The tall, 53-year-old Torontonian succeeds Eric Kierans who resigned the stock exchange posts last summer and later became revenue minister in the Quebec government of Premier Jean Lesage.

Mr. Hees, who made a strong impression here and abroad through his driving export campaigns as trade minister in the former Conservative government, described the new job Thursday night as his "biggest challenge."

HELP INVESTMENT

During a telephone press conference from his home in Toronto, he said he believed that in his new position he could help to encourage investment by Canadians in their own country.

Mr. Hees said his appointment gives him an excellent opportunity to assist in reconciling the differences of feeling among English-speaking and French-speaking Canadians.

Ship Lost, Inspector Kills Self

WINCHESTER, Mass. (AP) — The man who certified the Spanish ship Castillo Montjuich as fit for the Atlantic crossing in which she vanished has been ruled a suicide victim.

Dr. J. Vincent Dirago, associate county medical examiner, said Wednesday night that Capt. Carleton H. Clogston, 53, chief of the National Cargo Bureau's New England headquarters at Boston, was despondent over his role in certifying the 44-year-old vessel as fit for a winter crossing of the Atlantic.

Clogston was found dead on the floor of his garage at his home here Jan. 2. His face was directly beneath the car's exhaust pipe and the motor was running.

The Castillo Montjuich, carrying 9,000 tons of grain, was bound from Boston to Spain when she disappeared. No trace of the ship or any of the 37 crew members has been found.

OTTAWA—The revised federal pension plan will include a reserve fund believed to be in excess of $1.5 billion which will be available for the purchase of provincial government bonds.

The new plan will cost the taxpayer no more than the original one per cent of his salary as set out in the scheme first devised. It may take longer to come into full operation than the original 10 years, it was learned here today.

Prime Minister L. B. Pearson is sending out a letter this week to provincial premiers outlining the new plan. Details of the new plan will be disclosed after the premiers have had time to examine the proposal.

Establishment of the reserve fund will create a new low-cost source of money for the provincial bond market. It sets up a fund which can be used to purchase provincial government obligations and thus will give strengthened support to future provincial issues.

Only participating provinces will be able to make use of the fund for the purchase of bond issues. This means Quebec will not be included because Quebec has its own reserve fund under its separate provincial pension plan.

As the federal pension fund will be available for the purchase of provincially secured bonds, it is assumed this would include municipal bonds guaranteed by the provinces.

Ralph Bowman, board chairman of the Canadian exchange, said Mr. Hees should "cement a good feeling" between the stock exchanges in Montreal and Toronto. He declared both French-speaking and English-speaking elements in the exchanges here were unanimous in the choice of the new president. Mr. Hees speaks French.

Mr. Hees told the press conference it is "very important that Canadians be encouraged to take a financial participation in the development of their own country."

'MUST PARTICIPATE'

He added: "In my new position I believe I can be of help in bringing this about. I also believe that Canadians must control more of the industry of this country and that this can be brought about by making investments in developing industries so attractive that Canadians cannot afford not to participate..."

He said the government could assist in this by providing more tax incentives to bring about a greater volume of Canadian savings.

Mr. Hees said greater Canadian ownership and control of industry must be achieved through encouragement of Canadian investment in the country's development, rather than by placing restrictions on the entry of foreign capital.

He leaves today for Italy, Greece, Crete, Egypt, Israel and Jordan. In Tel Aviv, Israel, he will receive an honorary degree from Bar-Ilan University in recognition of his promotion of trade between that country and Canada.

Mr. Hees is a director of two business concerns. Since neither firm is listed on the Montreal

3 Girls Flee Via Tunnel Under Wall

BERLIN (UPI) — Three girls escaped under the Berlin Wall through a tunnel completed while the Communists were permitting West Berliners to make Christmas-time visits. Western police disclosed Thursday.

Optometrist Fined

TORONTO (CP) — Louis Abrams, an optometrist, was reprimanded and fined $50 by Chief Justice James C. McRuer of the Ontario Supreme Court Wednesday for failing to show up for jury duty. Abrams' lawyer said his client was under the impression that because he was a professional person he could be excused from jury duty. The Jurors Act excuses doctors, dentists, nurses and veterinarians, but not optometrists.

The West Berlin builders of the tunnel were able to warn other would-be escapees in time to prevent their arrests when the Communists found the tunnel.

It was the first news of a tunnel this year. Western police revealed its existence only after the Communists discovered its mouth, flooded it with tear gas, and blasted it shut with dynamite to prevent further escapes.

The girls fled the Communist sector on Tuesday. Officials said a large group of East Berliners had planned to follow them, but some coal yard workers in East Berlin stumbled across the opening and informed Communist authorities.

The tunnel itself was described as elaborate, running

A Reasonable Hope

THERE HAVE BEEN SCORES of disarmament meetings at one level or another since the end of the Second World War. Few have enjoyed a more favorable preliminary climate than the 17-nation conference which will re-open in Geneva two weeks from now.

For one thing, the general international feeling is more hopeful. There have been moves by both East and West to lessen tensions in recent months. The Christmas opening of the Berlin Wall was a case in point. And more particularly, both Mr. Khrushchev and Mr. Johnson have placed themselves on record in recent days with proposals for moves toward disarmament. These statements obviously have not been made without a purpose, and the timing of their release must likewise be held significant.

The supposition, then, is that both Russia and the United States will enter the negotiations with a will to find agreement on some points. The world is accustomed to disappointment where international disarmament talks are concerned, but there is reason to think that this time may be different. The success of the limited test ban is still fresh in mind.

Another hopeful factor is that, as a result of long and grim experience, the sights are not being set too high. It is becoming apparent that the most practical way to success lies in achieving small results wherever possible and pushing the line forward at every point where agreement can be reached. Thus there are no grandiose proposals this time to abolish armaments overnight, leading to grandiose failure. Instead, the delegates will discuss lesser objectives such as: a system of international observation posts to be set up in Europe to detect surprise troop movements by either side, a proposal to destroy obsolete aircraft and other war materials to prevent their acquisition by smaller nations, a plan to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons to more countries, creation of zones in various parts of the globe in which nuclear weapons may not be stored, agreement on mutual restriction of military budgets.

These are important points for discussion; they would represent important areas of agreement. And success with these minor elements would add to the chances of proceeding, by regular steps, to the main objective of eventual regulation and reduction of all arms.

This will not all be done at Geneva at the forthcoming meeting. But in both East and West there is a recognition that in the nuclear age there must be constant efforts to reduce arms, that the mounting cost of nuclear arms and their delivery systems is placing too heavy a burden on national resources, that any war which involves modern weaponry will have no winner, and that the peoples of the world are becoming more insistent that the threat of human extinction be lessened if it cannot be removed.

This is the setting for Geneva. And the spokesmen soon will take the stage.

The Cut In Air Fares

TRANS-CANADA AIR LINES has cut its round trip trans-Atlantic fares by amounts ranging from about $100 to $200 and has joined in the reduction by most scheduled lines crossing that ocean. The basic cut on regular economy class tariffs—the largest ones—cover excursion and first-class fares—is not as much as TCA had hoped to effect when meetings of the International Air Transport Association opened early last fall in Salzburg.

It is, nevertheless, a substantial reduction, as much, perhaps, as should have been expected in the compromise that was forced when other IATA members objected strenuously to details of the Trans-Canada proposal.

Now it remains to be seen if this inducement, tailored particularly to encourage trans-Atlantic air travel during the off season, will fill enough vacant seats to justify further reductions in the future. At present most scheduled lines flying the ocean operate with planes half empty on a year-round basis.

For a Stable Sugar Price

OTTAWA WILL TRY IN THE next few weeks to make arrangements to guarantee Canadians a stable price for sugar. The attempt results from political outcries which have followed the drastic increases of the past year in which sugar prices have approximately doubled as a result of world shortages and the actions of market speculators.

The plan, apparently, is to change from reliance on open world markets to guaranteed price contracts with other Commonwealth producers. Secret talks have already been held between Trade Minister Sharp and representatives of producers to work out details.

It is recognized that there is an element of risk in Canada becoming tied to a guaranteed price contract. While the price would be below the present world price and would represent an immediate saving to Canadian consumers, it would also preclude further savings should the world price break below the contract price.

There are, however, two reasons why the risk seems to be worthwhile. One is that world sugar production is not expected to increase as fast as consumption for several years at least. The other is that the move would make Canada independent of the action of market speculators who do at times push world prices up to artificially high levels.

In the long run, the guaranteed price contract would seem to be a better move than the only forceable alternative of direct government subsidies and price ceilings to protect consumers.

Honor and Tradition

VICTORIA UNIVERSITY authorities have touched a responsive chord among older citizens and those who cherish the reputation of the earlier college by selecting names for new buildings at Gordon Head.

To be so memorialized are Percy H. Elliott, Jeffrey A. Cunningham and Edward J. Savannah, while benefactor Mr. Thomas McPherson will have the campus encircling road named after him.

In addition to honoring individuals who have made large contributions to higher education in this community, the naming procedure establishes a worthwhile link with the past—a continual reminder of a tradition which is a source of pride to Greater Victoria.

The decision should be widely approved.

The Fish Were Biting

IT IS PLEASANT TO NOTE MR. Diefenbaker's good fishing luck on Saanich Inlet. The salmon were biting and the leader of the opposition declared the day a memorable one in his life.

Canadians generally will hope that the experience helps to return him refreshed and more serene to his pressing public duties—as it helps others who find the sport an antidote for the pressures of life.

It is unfortunate that more people in our public affairs fail to find time for this engaging form of relaxation in the favored inlet. In a country wrenched by discords, we could wish that all members of Parliament might spend a day angling here—if for no other reason than to test Edgar Guest's contention "that a fellow isn't thinkin' mean, 'out fishin'."

Herman, Victoria Daily Times.

LOOSE ENDS

THE customary New Year greetings have just arrived from my rich Canadian friend who, to escape taxes, moved long ago to the distant Pacific island of Amnesia and lives there in barbaric splendor on a huge income from Canada.

His card reached me a little late this time, due to the monsoon that interrupted his fleet of native canoes, but the message was the same as ever. Canada, my friend said, was going to hell in a super-sonic jet plane and, among other things, should increase its taxes right away to stave off bankruptcy.

This wise man, like so many self-exiled Canadians, is still keenly interested in the fate of our country. He worries about it all the time, brooding under a palm tree while a Polynesian girl reads aloud the doleful Hansard of our Parliament.

Advice for Free

Though he could earn rich fees as a business consultant, he is generous with free advice to Canada, so long as he receives his dividends regularly and pays only the insignificant taxes levied by the enlightened cannibal king of his island.

Naturally, therefore, I have sent a note of appreciation by today's post. "Canada," I wrote, "is certainly in terrible shape as you say. But there's no use wasting your compassion on us when we haven't the sense to get out before the Mounted Police lock us in."

"Just forget us in our grimy two-car garages, our humble, thermostatic, ranch-style igloos. I don't like to confess it but my desolate garden on the Pacific coast contains nothing but a few yellow jasmine blossoms, some Christmas roses and pale snowdrops, and in Winnipeg, I suspect, there may be no drops with the snow."

"We must endure the endless Canadian misery as best we may and, by remaining here, deserve nothing better. Sure, we're dumb but you must admit that we're a race of heroes, immune to hardship, cold, hunger, Pearson and the rigors of the five-day week."

Philosophy Needed

"Besides, as you know, the working people of Canada have stopped working altogether. In every businessman's club the captains of industry spend three hours over their frugal lunch complaining that labor is lazy, inefficient and over-paid, the government hopeless and the Canadian spirit debauched by leisure."

"At the same time the socialists are telling us to produce less so that we may consume more and raise wages to assure a fall in prices."

"Alas, this dire news is all too true. We should heed the warnings of that superior group of men, the innumerable professors of economics who, educated at Canada's expense, have left it to teach in foreign universities, to write books, deliver inspiring speeches and explain how Canada must save its soul and nationality by toil, blood, sweat and frozen tears."

"That sort of patriotism from afar stirs us deeply you may be sure. We are touched in our hibernation to hear that the patriots in exile still think longingly of Canada, give us the benefit of their expert counsel without charge and are willing to allow us any sacrifice for their ideals."

"Since you sympathize with our tragedy permit me to offer some friendly advice in return. You and your kind should make the supreme sacrifice and accept the nationality of your new home. Let all the nostalgic and hermaphrodite Canadians abroad become whole men again, citizens and taxpayers of the society in which they are doomed by their patriotism to live."

"Let them highly resolve that their Canadianism shall not have died in vain, that government of the exiles, by the exiles for the exiles shall not perish from this barren Arctic earth."

"So summon up your courage, my friend. Swear fealty to the heathen king of your island paradise. Pay your annual tribute to his treasury in the seashells and coconuts of his strong currency while we pay ours in weak, devalued dollars."

Not Affronted

"We shall not be affronted even if you worship at the altars of his savage gods and, like a true convert, bravely practise his fine old rites of cannibalism to prove once and for all that you have finally purged yourself of lingering Canadian vice."

"Having thus offered the last full measure of devotion, leave us to ruin Canada in our own dismal way. That will save a lot of time, oratory, printing, postage and foreign exchange during our normally unhappy New Year."

I have sent this greeting to my friend but unfortunately lack the means of writing to all those other heartbroken expatriates who have earned Canada's undying gratitude by their pity and their departure.

WASHINGTON DISCUSSION

New Approach to Viet Nam Problem

BECAUSE he considers Latin America the most explosive danger area abroad, President Lyndon Johnson has moved rapidly to concentrate the formerly dispersed responsibility for Latin American policy-making in the hands of his friend, Thomas Mann.

The pattern thus set is of special interest, because there are beginning to be signs that the President will also review possible new approaches to the problem of South Viet Nam, which he considers the second area of maximum danger at the present time.

If only for domestic political reasons, a confidence-increasing move of some sort is clearly in order. The same analysis who called most loudly for the downfall of President Ngo Dinh Diem are already beginning to wall that Diem's successors, the members of the military junta in Viet Nam, are also undeserving of American support. These defeatist voices will no doubt find their echoes on the hill, as soon as Congress reconvenes.

On the ground in Viet Nam, the situation is also disturbing.

In the last months of the Diem government, a secret French intrigue gave the North Vietnamese Communists good reasons to hope for an eventual deal with the Saigon government, to be made through Diem's all-powerful brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu. Hence the Communist attack was reined in during this period, only to be unleashed again with extra ferocity when the hope for a deal was abruptly disappointed by the anti-Diem coup d'etat.

Since the coup d'etat, moreover, government by a committee of generals has proved to be just as difficult as every sensible person foresaw. Thus, the position in Viet Nam, while by no means so alarming as the more enthusiastic defeatists suggest, is certainly far from satisfactory at the moment.

Confidence in Lodge

The position has not been made any easier, either, by President Eisenhower's move to inject Ambassador Henry Lodge into the Republican pre-convention contest. None the less, it can be said on high authority that the Ambassador commands confidence at the White House.

After his Saigon visit, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara reported that Lodge had the highest standing with the members of the military junta and the other post-Diem leaders in Viet Nam.

After receiving McNamara's report, President Johnson in fact instructed Ambassador Lodge to redouble his efforts to energize the new Vietnamese government, with particular emphasis on the countryside, where stronger leadership is badly needed. In the weeks ahead, the result of this extra effort by Lodge will be anxiously awaited.

Until these returns are in, decisions on further moves will probably be delayed. Yet the factors in the problem bearing directly on these future decisions are already being discussed. The most important factor is the present concentration of authority in a military junta. This in turn means that even the political levers of power in Saigon are now basically military in character.

In other words, the situation in Viet Nam, is now more than ever comparable to the situation in China in the last war. In those wartime years in China, American political influence, if exerted at all, was exclusively exerted by the American general on the spot, whereas the civilian U.S. ambassador had little or no real influence.

Special Case

In Saigon because of his high personal standing, Ambassador Lodge constitutes a very special case. But if Lodge decides to heed President Eisenhower's advice, and therefore returns to this country, there will be strong arguments for adopting the expedient that ought to have been adopted in wartime China.

In other words, there will be strong argument for concentrating all authority over the American effort in Viet Nam in the person of the U.S. military commander on the spot, who would also wear another, purely political hat—as the President's special representative. Gen. Joseph Collins played just such a double role in Saigon in 1954.

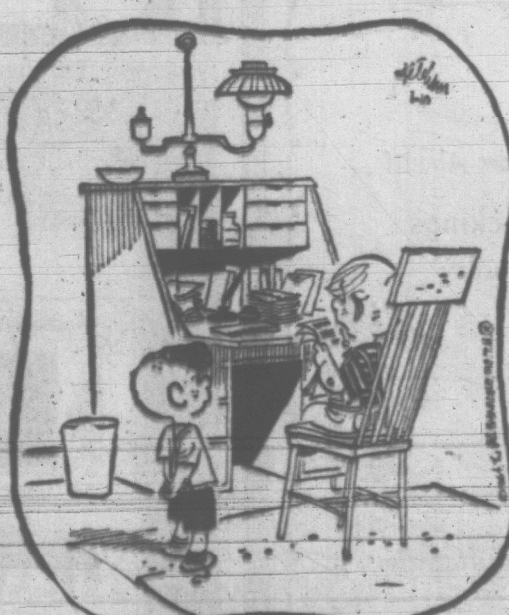

Astuteness Needed

Great political astuteness, as well as the highest military capacities, will certainly be needed by any officer to whom such an assignment is to be given. Thus, if Lodge decides to come home and the new system is adopted, the chances are that Gen. Paul Harkins will also be recalled. For General Harkins, while militarily highly competent, has no inclination whatever to play a political role.

There is no certainty that the new system will ever be adopted, if only because there are no indications when Ambassador Lodge will feel he has completed his task in Viet Nam. But the simple fact that such a novel system is even being discussed in principle is enough to suggest that new approaches to the Vietnamese problem are due to be studied at the White House before long.

'All Things New'

Many of the prophecies of Jesus are being proved in our times, and one of these is "There is nothing covered that shall not be revealed." (Gospel St. Luke 12:3.)

This is very true in the case of cruelty to animals. Humane-minded people in several countries have been working for years to bring the facts of trapping, vivisection, cruel sports, circus, racing and fishing cruelty before the public.

The great fur companies tried hard to keep the barbarity of the steel trap secret, but their success was short-lived, and thanks to the doctors who never practise vivisection or see the slightest need for it, that, also, should soon be obsolete.

Now we await the fulfilment of another prophecy, the second coming of Jesus. Who has promised in Rev. 21:5 to make "all things new."

'CRUSADER'

Rather Than Birth Control

Mrs. George Cadbury, secretary of the Planned Parenthood Association of Toronto said that she was unable to get a charter from the provincial government and was unable to advertise.

In these times with a sincere motive anyone can obtain help from their doctors, ministers or priests, without seeking aid through such an organization.

She also said that the executive is top-heavy with Anglican and United Church ministers, rabbis, professors, and doctors.

The only reason for this is that they feel it is the lesser of two evils. From a human standpoint contraception is less horrifying than abortion. Therefore we feel that if Mrs. Cadbury and her associates were to promote self-control rather than birth control they might appeal to one hundred per cent of all married couples.

JOE and NORANNE TURNER,
1157 McClure Street.

Epidemic of Increases

After noting through the press and radio that a regular epidemic of raising salaries has taken place recently throughout Canada—the Governor-General, all lieutenant-governors of the provinces, the CBC head and his deputy, and many others, in spite of our finance minister announcing the $700 million deficit in our finances—I wondered if one could suggest a few crumbs that might fall from some rich man's table to help many in the lower strata of citizenship, pensioners or those with large families and mediocre means. About the only thing I can think of would be a more equitable adjustment of applying our 5 per cent sales tax.

The present arrangement for tax application calls for a 1 cent tax to start at 15c, a 2 cent tax imposed at 30c, a 3 cent tax applied at 50c, and a 4 cent tax at 60c or 70c, but the tax itself was 5 per cent. A definite clarification of the actual tax would be to commence at 20 cents, 40 cents, 60 cents, 80 cents and the 5 per cent at $1.00 or more dollars.

H. WYER,
1170 Chapman Street.

Grateful

We are grateful for the publicity recently given to our work with the Retarded, and we realize fully how dependent we are on this kind of communication. We have a firm belief in the concern and compassion of the general public, and only the Press can give them our story so that they may act.

Mrs. Dale's welcome "Letter to the Editor" brought to our attention one implication regarding financial assistance from the Provincial Government. The money referred to will be paid to us by the Board of Trustees of School District No. 61 (indirectly from the Department of Education) and will be paid on behalf of the children of kindergarten age (between 5-6 years) and not on the basis of severity of retardation. We are also pleased to state that the sum will be in the neighborhood of $27 per month for each of the five pupils in this age group. We are grateful for this help, but of course it is by no means sufficient for our needs.

WINIFRED M. CLARK,
Executive Director, Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded.

Know About Mr. Fernie?

I am attempting to uncover some historical material in connection with Mr. William Fernie—the founder of my home town, Fernie, B.C.

Mr. Fernie resided in Victoria from about the turn of the century until his death on May 15, 1921.

He apparently did not have any relatives in Canada and there do not appear to be any papers—either memoirs or a diary.

Your paper covered Mr. Fernie's life quite extensively on the occasion of his death, but I wondered—if any of your readers remembered him?

Did he "board"—or did he reside for any length of time in one of Victoria's hotels? It's an "off chance," but were any of his effects—particularly a diary, or letters—hidden away in a trunk or in an attic after his demise?

Anything at all that you or your readers might be able to tell me would be greatly appreciated—since it is rather difficult to fill the gaps on legend alone!

U.S.-Canada Trade

IT IS one thing to compete with Canada and it is another to use legislative weapons against her. Few Americans realize the close economic ties between our country and Canada under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT). GATT, however, is not a one-way street.

As was pointed out during the 1963 Tariff Commission hearings, Canada—if discriminated against in one important segment of its economy (and probably the life blood of such provinces as British Columbia and Alberta)—would reciprocate, justifiably, against the United States by invoking sanctions against the dramatic volume of exports which we send to that nation.

U.S. exports of all kinds of goods to Canada in the period 1950-61 totalled $3.7 billion annually, while our nation imported from Canada only $3 billion—our export surplus has ranged between $600 million-$800 million a year.—Hershel M. Tanzer, President, Western Lumber Marketing Ass'n., Portland, Ore.

INSIDE POLITICS

With Douglas Fisher, M.P.

I would sooner indict the CBC than the three participants in Sunday's travesty of a national public affairs program. After all, Mr. Pearson was himself: halting, circuitous, balancing, and bland. Mr. Lynch was nicely avuncular, velvet-voiced as usual, rambling and decently Canadian in his questions. Mr. Ryan, as sardonic as Robert Ryan, had his French as some protection, although the translations, if accurate, indicate he prefaces questions with long-winded opinions just as aptly as any politician ever answers questions.

How does the CBC come up with something so bad? It cleared a half-hour of prime Sunday TV time, boomed the show with press ads across the country, gave a national preview of it on radio, talked big about a new kind of interview technique, talked bigger about an experiment in bilingual telecasting, talked biggest about a "State of the Nation" address by the prime minister. Ugh!

Clumsy Gaucherie

Another viewer turned to me at the end and said: "He didn't say anything did he, really, I mean he didn't."

Well, he told us Parliament will reconvene on February 18th. Profound! That'll buck up the nation. Remind it of its state! Otherwise, he said nothing new and rephrased nothing old in any fresh way. The originality or ingenuity ended when Mr. Pearson mentioned the introduction of his interviewers. Very clever!

Mr. Lynch has returned recently from a world tour. He hinted or name-dropped about it. His questions suggest he was gone a long, long time. Usually Mr. Lynch is even better than pundits Blair Fraser and Bruce Hutchison at enriching the trite until it seems bright, even coruscating. Perhaps the majesty of this occasion got to Charlie.

Mr. Ryan represents a type common in France and Quebec: a newspaperman more political and partisan than the politicians. He has been a proponent of the separatist swing in Quebec, which he sees as justification for the argument that Quebec should have an unusual sovereignty. Mr. Ryan has been heralding the end of Confederation as we know it. It is too bad he didn't get around to saying this more bluntly to Mr. Pearson. Then we might have got something better than the PM's: "I wonder whether we are not exaggerating... at the same time... we must remember that... a long look at... I suppose..."

The interviewers fulfilled no function I could see except to fill in time. Perhaps they made Mr. Pearson comfortable with their company or were necessary to symbolize the bi-something or other. The clumsy reminders of our bilingual status—Ryan's monologues in French; Pearson briefly (thank the Lord) in French—were merely that, clumsy. One would think that the French-Canadians might find the gaucherie of it rather insulting.

But I am a long way from the question: how does the CBC do it? They do do it, well and often. I shouldn't say it. I shouldn't say it as a politician, as a New Democrat, as someone who has appeared on CBC programs, but I am driven to it. This show and those ghastly year-end phonies, be-studded with world-famous CBC correspondents! The CBC public affairs and news departments are decayed, if not dying; their leadership seems smug, ignorant, and unimaginative, many of their ideas fatuous and pretentious.

I grit my teeth when the CBC brings to my eager constituents in northern Ontario all the latest from Laos and Cambodia and Malaysia and Israel and Lebanon and Cuba. I am sure it keeps that 1/100th of 1 per cent of them who are international buffs happy. But when it disillusiones them on our prime minister... well, it's enough to make one think John Diefenbaker now has an Establishment going for him.

Before I get to the stage of calling the CBC the Opposition's best weapon let me give my explanation for shows so poor as this.

The CBC hasn't any national competition with even a modicum of funds and resources. Too few of us follow British and American public affairs viewing to realize how stuffy and pompous the CBC usually is, particularly when it is taking its "national purpose" seriously.

The CBC is too fat. It has too many second-rate minds and third-rate producers. It is cluttered with too many research assistants, script girls, camera crews, and stagehands. Superimposed? Parallel with? Dovetailed in? Anyway, there is a swarming hierarchy in Ottawa and a plethora of liaison types in Toronto and Montreal. The main success of this mob seems to be the choosing of American serials, like Bonanza, and continuing variety turns like Ed Sullivan. The question remains: how can so many people with such a strong national purpose produce so little that's good on Canada, in Canada. It's worse than Parliament.

Over-Stuffed Turkey

The CBC is cowardly, perhaps with reason. It tends to kid-glove or ignore domestic issues, until it cannot escape them. The only exceptions here I can think of are bilingualism and anti-Diefenbakerism. It's been a veteran proponent of the first, largely, I believe, because its mission in French gave it a merit with politicians which overshadowed the criticism of the crass private broadcasters. Its anti-Diefenbaker line was rather subtle, until the last campaign.

The bally-hoo was enormously pretentious, the production too epic, the result most embarrassing for the viewer who was left with the horror: was this our prime minister? If the CBC had courage and drive, no one, not even the prime minister, would have been treated so softly and soporific. If the CBC had a real national rival it couldn't serve such overstuffed turkey.

CURE FOR MARKET ILLS

De Gaulle Accepts Summit

BONN (Reuters) — West German Chancellor Erhard says French President de Gaulle had agreed to moves for a West European summit meeting to cure the ills of the six-nation European Common Market.

Erhard told the Bundestag (Parliament) today he would visit the French leader in Paris Feb. 14-15 before de Gaulle's trip to the West Indies.

The chancellor said he told de Gaulle in November that new moves were urgently needed to dissipate the "political malaise" inside the Common Market.

De Gaulle replied he personally did not wish to launch a new initiative but would go along with the chancellor's efforts, Erhard said.

De Gaulle said he was prepared to accept an invitation for a meeting of government heads and foreign ministers, Erhard reported.

Erhard said he and de Gaulle were fully agreed that a strong, united Europe was desirable but there were nuances of differences between them on whether or not Europe should become a third world power.

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS—A building area of high pressure is clearing skies on the coast. The clearing trend will be evident in much of the southern interior tonight and Saturday as this high moves inland. Meanwhile colder air is edging southward through the central part of the province accompanied by snow flurries, but the leading edge is expected to stall in the southern Cariboo. Another storm will bring rain and gales to the north coast overnight but will weaken considerably as it moves south and eastward through the province Saturday.

Slow-poke Cars Face Crackdown

The B.C. cabinet Thursday promised to try and do something about dangerous slow-poke drivers on provincial highways.

Vancouver Alderman Halford Wilson, president of the B.C. Automobile Association, said the cabinet agreed the problem will "definitely be considered" by the attorney-general's department.

He said the association was assured by the cabinet at a meeting that there will be an attempt to get police to crack down on slowpokes.

The association was also promised that the government will review the problem of tourists charged with traffic offences.

Police have been detaining some tourists under section 62A of the Motor Vehicle Act, which allow them to arrest anyone with out-of-province licence plates who violates any section.

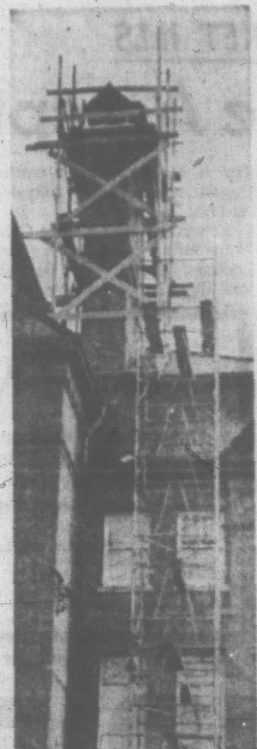

Police found that they were unable to get fines from tourists who left the province.

The problem of restaurants and washrooms for ferry patrons will also be studied, the cabinet promised.

The automobile association asked for facilities to serve people who had to wait in line-ups outside the compounds.

De Gaulle Snubbed

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson has politely turned down a French hint that he meet President de Gaulle at the Caribbean island of Martinique, it was reported Wednesday night. Paris was told that Johnson's duties bar him from leaving the United States in the months ahead, informed sources said.

SKY-SCRAPING SCAFFOLDING was built at North Ward School so workmen could inspect and repair massive chimney-vent on which a recent survey indicated loose brick. Work was undertaken during school hours and when children marched in main door, workmen felt the chimney sway, principal R. V. James reported.

France-U.S. Difficulties Will 'Evolve'

PARIS (AP)—Premier Georges Pompidou says the United States now recognizes, in a general manner, that Europe should have an equal voice in the Atlantic alliance.

Pompidou told reporters at a New Year's reception Tuesday night.

"I think that the difficulties which existed between the United States and France should normally evolve in a sense of quieting and comprehension."

He added that he believes the United States agrees that Europe should not accept American "protection." President de Gaulle has said France and Europe should depend on themselves.

TRIPLE SESSION

'Hansard' Would Spur MLA Talk

A Hansard could triple the length of a B.C. legislative session, in the opinion of the new Speaker of the House.

William H. Murray, Social Credit MLA for Prince Rupert and Premier Bennett's choice for Speaker in the session to start Jan. 23, has arrived in Victoria to conduct the advance planning for the formal opening ceremonies.

He said he is not in favor of a formal record of all that is said.

"This is purely a personal view, but I think a Hansard would drag out the session," said Mr. Murray.

"Instead of eight weeks, it could last 28 weeks." He said he felt a Hansard would encourage MLAs to make long, detailed speeches just to get on the record and to impress local constituents.

Mr. Murray refused to adopt the role of Speaker until he is formally elected on Jan. 23. However, he said he would try to preserve as much old-time tradition as possible in proceedings of the legislature.

"I don't think we have strayed too far, but if we have I want to return to it," he said.

Mr. Murray said he felt new MLAs should be allowed to read part of their first speeches, but he would discourage reading by the old hands.

"One thing that does concern me a little is the impression that some people seem to get about debate in the House.

"People have said to me, 'How will you ever keep order?'"

Mr. Murray said he didn't know how to correct the impression because sometimes visitors who spend only a short time in the House while there is a brief shouting match go away thinking it is always like that.

Revise Liquor Laws

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Roberts said Thursday the government is planning a complete revision of the Liquor Control Act and the Liquor Licence Act. Mr. Roberts said a press conference that both acts contain outmoded sections and should be updated.

Meal Tax to Stay Kiernan Confirms

New Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan called Thursday for consideration of value rather than expense in service to tourists.

At the same time, he confirmed retention of the currently-controversial 5 per cent sales tax on restaurant meals costing more than $1.

On service to tourists, Mr. Kiernan said: "Offer them something different and make them feel glad they came here."

He assured a meeting of the Victoria and Southern Vancouver Island branch of B.C. Motels and Resorts Association he would give tourism its "fair share" of his attention.

The minister holds three portfolios — commercial transport, mines and petroleum resources, and recreation and conservation. He assumed the third after the defeat of former minister Earle Westwood.

Speaking also as a treasury board member, he said: "In making tax cutbacks, you have to find an alternate source of revenue or eliminate some service."

"Sales tax represents nearly $90,000,000 revenue."

FARES STAY

On possible reduction of car fares on B.C. ferries, he said: "We have very heavy capital commitments on the ferry system. I can see no likelihood in the foreseeable future that the fares could be reduced so far as motor vehicles are concerned."

Mr. Kiernan asked tourist industry operators to encourage tourists to visit other parts of the province, and to get them to stay longer. He said there is no point in advertising if word-of-mouth is to spoil the effect.

'Harsh, Unreal Climate'

DALLAS, (UPI) — Jack Ruby's lawyers said Thursday they wanted his murder trial moved away from the "harsh and unreal" climate which they said was created by Dallas news media.

J. H. Tonahill of Jasper, Tex., said the defence could petition criminal Dist. Judge Joe B. Brown Jan. 20, for a change of venue.

"There is a lot of feeling in Dallas," Tonahill said, "that Dallas is on trial and that might spill over into Mr. Ruby's situation."

Ruby, a 32-year-old dapper strip-tease club owner, dashed in front of national television cameras Nov. 24 and shot to death Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy.

RESEARCH UNDER WAY

Put Air Crashes on Tape?

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCAF, the National Research Council and Leigh Instruments Limited, Carleton Place, Ont., have launched a joint project to produce a method by which accident data recording equipment carried in aircraft may be recovered intact in event of a crash.

Submit Pension Plan

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec Federation of Labor Wednesday submitted to the Lesage government a proposal for a compulsory provincial old age pension.

In a brief, the federation suggests Quebec should ensure that, at the lowest possible cost, as many persons as possible enjoy in retirement a standard of living comparable to the standard they enjoyed during their working lives.

The research stems from aircraft accidents in which equipment used to automatically record a variety of functions of an aircraft is destroyed in the crash.

RCAF and NRC officials said such a system would be of major value in helping to determine causes of aircraft crashes such as the recent crash near Montreal of a Trans-Canada Air Lines DC-8F passenger plane with a loss of 118 lives. It also could lead to aircraft modifications to prevent future crashes.

If such a system can be developed, it will be possible to recover from a plane a magnetic tape recording showing how the aircraft was functioning prior to a crash.

An RCAF spokesman said tests with an experimental "accident data recorder" — crash position indicator will take place within a few weeks aboard an RCAF Yukon transport operating from Cold Lake, Alta.

Russ Gold Output 'Half' Estimates

LONDON — Soviet gold production is less than half of what has been estimated during recent years, according to the most authoritative Western sources.

The new estimate, disclosed by the Central Intelligence Agency in Washington, puts the annual Soviet production of gold at about $175 million.

At the world price of $35 a troy ounce, this gives an annual Soviet output of over 5 million ounces.

The only other American government estimate available to the public, by the U.S. Bureau of Mines, put Soviet gold production in 1962 at slightly over 12 million ounces, or more than $420 million.

EATING RESERVES

The importance of the new estimate is that it shows the Russians to have been steadily eating into their gold reserves in the past few years, in contrast to the old estimate, which suggested that the Soviet reserves were rising all the time. The Soviet Union's international financial position is therefore seen to be much weaker than it was thought to be in the past.

The change produced by the new information is comparable to the elimination of the "missile gap" some years ago, when the Western estimate of Soviet missile production was reversed to show that the U.S. missile armory was greater than Russia's.

The CIA spokesman, who was quoted by news agencies Wednesday for the new figure, did not provide the basis for the agency's calculations.

LOWER ESTIMATE

The agency's estimate is believed to have been considerably lower than other estimates for some time past, but this is the first time it has been published. Gold merchants, banks and gold mining organizations throughout the world make their own estimates, which are little more than informed—and sometimes uninformed—guesses.

The CIA, however, is thought to be better equipped to collect and collate this kind of information, which is processed in much the same manner as the information that first produced, and then eliminated, the missile gap.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency said Thursday Russia is in such deep economic trouble that Premier Khrushchev must pare other programs to meet his expansion goals if he cannot get long-term credit from the West.

The picture of the Soviet economic situation, as put together by CIA analysts, was given to reporters at what was described as the first general press briefing of this kind since the normally secret intelligence unit was set up after the Second World War.

According to the CIA spokesman, the Kremlin has got into an economic fix from a combination of over-ambitious economic programs and a near-disaster in agricultural production.

The CIA spokesman said if the Kremlin does not get credit from the West, it would have to siphon resources from elsewhere in the Soviet economy to achieve its goals — including perhaps reducing military expenditures.

TROUBLE SPOTS at water-plagued Sunro Mine of Covichan Copper Co., Jordan River, were pointed out by president Oswald G. MacDonald to associate, Doug Malcolm, geologist for Macsan-Explorations Ltd. Crews Thursday had water from second trouble spot diverted to river bank, allowing men to rebuild road access to mine portal, this time with gravel, not timber trestle swept away in washout Tuesday. Expert Advises On Daff-Fest

Expert advice on the organization of a daffodil festival will be given to the Chamber of Commerce tourist industry group next week.

Orville Brown, one of the chief organizers of the annual daffodil festival at Puyallup, Washington, today accepted an invitation to address the group at its meeting in the Empress Hotel Thursday at 6:30 p.m.

"Mr. Brown will advise us on the daffodil festival we plan to hold in Victoria this spring," said group chairman Bernie Cox.

"The Puyallup festival was started more than 30 years ago and has grown into a big annual attraction. Mr. Brown will give us the benefit of his experience and answer questions from members."

Victoria daffodil growers and other interested parties will also contribute to a discussion on the local festival, suggested recently by Mayor R. B. Wilson.

Girl Found Unhurt in Cabin

MERRITT (CP) — A 16-year-old girl said Thursday her former suitor wanted to frighten her when he drove off with her eight days ago.

"He just wanted to frighten me," said Jill Berkley of Colletville on her return Thursday. "He didn't bother me or touch me."

Wolfgang Schneider, 24, pleaded guilty to contributing to juvenile delinquency Thursday and was remanded one week for sentence.

The pair were discovered by police in a cabin at Vavenby, 85 miles north of Kamloops, Wednesday night.

Jill said Schneider, a boarder in the Berkley home, was giving her a ride home when he just decided to "take off" with her New Year's eve.

She thought he would take her home soon, that he was just trying to scare her.

Police notified Jill's parents and the parents drove to Vavenby and took her home.

Jill said she was not harmed by the ordeal but she was very tired. She planned to return to school and mark the incident down to experience.

Bathgate Not on Block

TORONTO (CP)—New York Rangers vice-president and general manager, Muzz Patrick, says Rangers are not trading All-Star right winger Andy Bathgate.

"Management of the Rangers has no deals pending at this time involving the trading of Andy Bathgate or any other players on its current roster," Patrick said Thursday night after Rangers defeated Boston Bruins 5-3 for their fourth win in a row.

Patrick, commenting on reports that Bathgate was involved in a New York-Toronto deal, said he "certainly intends to keep Bathgate, one of the great hockey players of all time."

"Despite any rumors to the contrary no trades are being made and the Rangers' management has complete confidence in the team's ability to make the playoffs," he said.

Sports editor Milt Dunnell of the Toronto Star said a trade involving Bathgate and two or three Toronto players was in the works.

He said the Toronto club has offered left winger Dick Duff and right winger Bob Nevin, and possibly spare defenceman Kent Douglas, in exchange for the veteran Bathgate.

Stafford Smythe, Maple Leaf Gardens president, said Thursday Leafs have been interested in Bathgate for many years. He said he had "never thought" of a deal involving Duff, Nevin and Douglas, but he said anytime he meets Ranger officials, he always asks: "Any deals in mind?"

Dave Anderson, hockey writer with the New York Journal-American, wrote Thursday that "in one of the most daring moves in recent Ranger history, the front office is contemplating trading super star Bathgate. It might happen in a few days or a few weeks."

Patrick said: "I can't deny that we've talked to other clubs about Bathgate, but we haven't got Bathgate on the block at all."

CURLERS' CORNER

By Ernie Fedoruk

Those wrist-snapping, ice-slapping sweepers who like to back up their fancy style with noise draw a reminding note today.

It comes from the B.C. Curling Association. Inverted-straw brooms, it says, can not be used in any of the B.C. association bonspiels nor the Canadian championship playdowns.

"This ruling was passed by the BCCA two years ago," secretary Walter Hobbs of Kelowna said. "We don't want anyone to think we have forgotten about it."

This, then, hits the noise-lovers like a black-jack. Most curling clubs in the province use the brooms despite the ruling. The ban is also observed on the Prairies, where the clubs are a lot stricter. Still available through retail outlets, the brooms were banned because small portions of the inverted straw break off, fall onto the ice and create a mash which is not conducive to good curling.

The Island's newest curling club opens its doors, officially, tonight!

The four-sheet Campbell River club, built this year at a cost of about $70,000, will be baptized by a 40-rink mixed bonspiel. It was just over a year ago that Campbell River curling enthusiasts launched the big drive for the new rink.

It goes without saying that the hard-core curlers did a fine job. The new club will be an asset not only to Campbell River but to the entire Island.

League play starts Monday. Saturdays and Sundays have been set aside for commercial play.

The club, situated near the hospital, has hired Jack Serjeant of Nanaimo as ice-maker and manager. It starts the season with a roster of 266 shareholders who purchased redeemable memberships at $100 each. In all, over 300 Campbell River residents have signed up to curl.

Theirs is the ninth club on the Island.

Esquimalt is scheduled to name its men's representatives this weekend. Otherwise, the Island playdown picture is all set.

Rinks skipped by Lyle Gordon and Al Thompson each have 5-1, won-lost records as they step on the Sports Centre ice for Saturday's final-round games (at noon). Jack Moir's quartet, at 4-2, has an outside chance of making it.

Should the deadlock still exist after Saturday's games, a playoff will be held Sunday. In case of a two-rink playoff, a sudden-death match will start at 2 p.m. Should a three-rink playoff develop, games will be played at 8 a.m. and 2 p.m.

It is interesting to note of the possibilities being offered by Duncan's contenders.

The men's crew is guided by Glen Harper, the defending B.C. champion. Glen's wife, Marg, is skipping the ladies' rink which will campaign for the Island title at Nanaimo Jan. 20 and 21.

Glen's lead is Vern Kaspick. Throwing first rocks for Mrs. Harper is Sharon Kaspick.

Incidentally, Harper's second, Gary Merrett, is back throwing a few rocks each day after being stricken with an attack of hepatitis. Harper made it official by submitting Merrett's name for the Island finals, to be played at Courtenay Jan. 13-19.

LOOSE STRAWS: Vancouver's Lyle Dagg, a public relations man from 'way back, is handling PRO chores for the Pacific Coast Curling Association. Lyle has reached the second plateau in the mainland playdowns, and it would be interesting indeed if he should run up against kid brother Keith, skipping Victoria's hopes, in the PCCA finals at Victoria Club Feb. 8 and 9. Our Quadra Street club will also host the best-of-three playoff for the provincial championship between the PCCA winner and the BCCA champions. Now's the time to start thinking about Victoria's annual bonspiel, Feb. 5-8. There were a number of disappointments last year when the limit of 64 was reached all-too-quickly.

Mary Brillinger, calling the shots for Mabel Vyner, Phyllis Bird and Betty Browning, won the Esquimalt ladies' berth earlier this week with a two-straight victory over Ida Patterson's rink. Another Patterson, Dave, won top honors in the annual Comox alrmen's bonspiel this week. Victoria DeMolay is scheduled to hold an all-night bonspiel at Victoria club Feb. 15. Kirby Moysiey, the curling dentist, is recovering in St. Joseph's from an operation.

Bob Rosburg's 66 Leads 'Diego Open

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Bob Rosburg fashioned a four-under-par 66 Thursday to lead the way through the first round of the $30,000 San Diego Open. Darkness closed in and left 30 golfers stranded on the course. Those caught by nightfall were slated to finish the round this morning.

The 37-year-old Rosburg foured the par 35-35-70 Rancho Bernardo course in 33-35-66. Play had been delayed one hour to let the greens thaw out, then it turned bright and brisk and everything was fine until the late starters were left on the course.

George Knudson of Toronto was deadlocked at 68 with two other golfers.

Tied one stroke behind Rosburg were U.S. Open champion Julius Boros 33-34; Tony Lema 33-34, and an unknown from Fort Worth Tex., Charles Coody, 34-33.

Arnold Palmer, pre-tournament favorite, played an erratic round in 36-37-73.

Deadlocked at 68 with Knudson, who had a 34-34, were Tommy Bolt, with 32-36, and England's PGA champion Peter Butler 36-32.

TORONTO (CP)—Veteran goalie Johnny Bower, a standout for Toronto Maple Leafs in their last nine games, will miss two weekend games with Boston Bruins and next week's practice sessions.

The club announcement that he was being replaced for the week by alternate goalie Don Simmons came after a blow-up by Bower during a tough practice session Thursday morning. The Globe and Mail, suggesting a reported hand injury was a cover used by Leaf manager coach Punch Imlach to hide the real reason for Bower's departure, said Bower "stomped angrily" into the dressing-room 15 minutes before the practice session ended and hurled his equipment to the floor.

Bower went immediately to team physician Dr. Jim Murray who said the goalie has a swelling and bruising of his left hand, particularly his index finger.

"I have seen this about three times in the last three weeks and it has not improved," Dr. Murray said. "I think it will become chronic if he doesn't have a period of rest."

Bower has been on a particularly hot streak since he was beaten 7-3 by Montreal Canadiens Dec. 18. Since then, he has played in nine straight games, allowing only 12 goals and notching three shutouts.

Leafs won six of the nine, tied one and lost two.

His last effort, a 6-1 win over Montreal-Wednesday night, may have led to friction between him and Imlach.

The Globe and Mail says it learned from one source that "at one stage of the game, Canadiens rookie John Ferguson sped across the Toronto goal mouth, brushing against Bower."

"Ferguson fell headlong into the boards. When play halted Bower skated toward Ferguson with solicitous intent, and gave him a friendly pat with his stick when he saw the rival player was all right."

Imlach, according to this source, told Bower his job was between the goal posts and to stay there. When there was a further reference to the episode during yesterday's practice, Bower reportedly steamed off the ice with words to the effect that he would play the game his own way.

Bower would not comment on the report.

Another source said Imlach had ordered Bower from the rugged practice and that the goalie had gone for an examination by Dr. Murray before the practice ended.

Raise Boosts Dagg

CALGARY (CP)—Three Calgary rinks edged out their opponents Thursday night to join two other rinks qualified for the double knockout quarter finals of the Masters Curling Championship here.

In the opening round of the final stage of the tournament, Hersh Lerner of Winnipeg, Merv Mann of Saskatoon, Bernie Sparks, Ron Northcott and Nick Lashuk, all of Calgary, came up with wins.

The playoff, with each of the 16 entries having two lives, will end Saturday with the final game for four cars.

Rinks skipped by Lyle Dagg of Vancouver, Buzz McGibney; of Trail, Hec Gervais of Edmonton and Jim McCullough of Calgary survived the do-or-die last round of the eliminating preliminary games.

Dagg executed a double-raise shot with his last rock to squeeze out Bob Beitz of Medicine Hat 9-8. McGibney stole a single point in an extra end to eliminate Lionel Wood of Edmonton 12-10.

Rinks qualified for the finals are: Hawkins, Edmonton; Lashuk, Calgary; Mann, Saskatoon; Percival, Blackie, Alta.; Geddes, Edmonton; Sparks, Calgary; Lerner, Winnipeg; McCullough, Calgary; Baldwin, Edmonton; Gervais, Edmonton; Richardson, Regina; McGibney, Trail; Campbell, Avonlea, Sask., and Dagg.

Rangers made it four straight victories with a 5-3 win over Boston Bruins while Chicago bowed to Detroit Red Wings by the same score.

The loss was the third in the last four games for the league-leading Hawks.

Jacques Plante played a strong game in the Rangers net, making 46 saves while his mates tested Boston goalie Ed Johnston only 31 times.

Rod Gilbert, Camille Henry, Al Langlois, Vic Hadfield and Jim Neilson shared the scoring for New York. Tom Johnson, Bobby Leiter and Dean Prentice found the mark for the Bruins, who have been unable to win a game in their last 10 starts.

WESTFALL HURT
Boston's Ed Westfall was taken to hospital complaining of impaired vision after suffering a 10-stitch cut when struck by a stick.

Detroit blew an early two-goal lead but bounced back to take the game sparked by a two-goal effort by Larry Jeffrey in Detroit.

Jeffrey's second marker came in the third period with the Hawks pressing for a tie. Andre Pronovost, Norm Ullman and Alex Delvecchio were the other members of the Red Wings squad to find the mark.

Scoring for Chicago were Kenny Wharram, Ron Murphy and Bobby Hull.

Hull's goal was his 24th, the best in the league so far, and it was No. 23 for Wharram.

Sports Centre Hosts Junior High Bonspiel

Junior high school curlers from Nanaimo and Victoria converge on Esquimalt's Sports Centre Saturday for the first Island Invitational bonspiel.

Twenty-six rinks will take part in the one-day affair, shooting for the Gar Taylor and the Hocking and Forbes trophies.

HOPES FADE

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Hopes for settlement of the strike at Santa Anita faded when negotiations collapsed Thursday for the second time in four days.

"There's no use trying any more. It's all through," said W. J. Bassett, executive secretary of the Los Angeles County Federation of Labor.

Said Santa Anita President Robert P. Strub: "This may be a long strike. The whole future of the sport of racing in California is at stake."

Strub said if management agreed to union demands "California racing could not survive beyond the very near future."

Representatives of the Federation of California Racing Associations and the Building Service Employees International Union (AFL-CIO) talked for five hours Thursday but failed to reach a settlement.

The union wants health and welfare coverage for retired employees and increased coverage of active employees.

Leo Geffner, union lawyer, said he can't understand why Santa Anita can't pay $8.30 for retired employees health coverage. The union claims this would be the cost for all 163 retired employees in the state.

"The track has a daily handle of $2,500,000 and made a $2,000,000 profit for 55 days in 1963," said Geffner.

Pony, Pony, Who's Got the Pony?

Score was only incidental to these eager youngsters who were part of noisy crowd at Memorial Arena Thursday night for "Pony Night" game in Pacific Coast Junior Hockey League. Victoria Cougars nipped New Westminster 5-4 but most of 4,000 fans appeared more interested in who was going to win pony. Lucky youngster was Langford resident Art Hayton, 13, of 1031 Dunsford.

WILSON POTS THREE

4,000 Cheer Cats' Victory

There is nothing like vocal support to inspire a team.

Ask Victoria Cougars, penthouse suite, Pacific Coast Junior "A" Hockey League.

Accustomed to playing before crowds ranging from 23 to 24, Cougars Thursday night had 4,000 yelping, screaming Pony Night adolescents behind them. No team could lose with that kind of support. Cougars didn't. They put out a little more and outdressed New Westminster Royals 5-4 at Memorial Arena.

Cougars' perseverance and perspiration lifted them into first place, a point ahead of their victims. Much of Victoria's success Thursday was spelled Don Wilson. Small and not unduly quick, Wilson showed remarkable finesse around the net. He scored three goals (and could have had five), assisted on another by Paul Bion.

GREGOIRE SOLOS

Cougars' most important goal was the product of Ray Gregoire's diligence. Breaking up a Westminster play Gregoire, skating with giant strides, swooped around and through three Royal defenders, pulled Barry Brown out of his goal and tidily dumped the puck in the twine. The din was deafening.

Two Royals required hospital treatment. A high stick perforated John Lee's lip and didn't do several of his teeth much good either.

Mike Paquin—crashed into the boards and lay there for minutes. Taken to hospital with what was believed to be a badly-bruised thigh, Paquin was held overnight for observation.

Aside from the Cougars the biggest "winner" was a 13-year-old Langford boy, Art Hayton. He went home with a three-year-old Shetland pony—the prize of the evening.

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)—

After six snowless weeks and bright sunshine, snow began falling this morning over this huge winter Olympic complex.

Officials of the winter games, which will be held here Jan. 29 to Feb. 9, were heartened as the white fluffy stuff began covering the Alpine ski courses.

To make them even happier, weathermen predicted more snowfall over the weekend.

When the snow first started an army of 2,200 soldiers and a small group of volunteers were busy stomping snow which had been pushed onto the slalom and downhill courses by bulldozers.

Chiefs Disputing Protest Decision

The Esquimalt and District Hockey League's protest committee has upheld a Navy protest, and now it looks as if Esquimalt Pontiac Chiefs are ready to protest the protest decision.

League president A. E. Loft said Thursday Navy's protest of a Jan. 3 game with Pontiac has been upheld. The ruling hinged on the length of time a Navy defenceman spent in the penalty box.

The game, said Loft, will be replayed Tuesday at the Sports Centre.

The decision brought an angry outcry from Chiefs' manager, Joe Iannarelli.

"As far as I know, the protest committee didn't even bother to hear our side of it. Granted the Chiefs (leading by six points) don't need the points," Iannarelli added, "but I object to the principle of the thing. The timekeeper detained the Navy player too long... about a minute and a half."

"They're penalizing us 58 1/2 minutes for an official's error. Remember, the time keeper is, according to CAHA rules, an actual official of the game. He wasn't put in the box by Pontiac Chiefs!"

Slope Safety Big Problem

By JOHN PAIN

Although one of the major problems facing operators of ski resorts this season is slope safety, strong punitive measures against "schussbombers" and "kannonen" seemed to be frowned upon by resort managers.

Finger-shaking and a muttered "tak-tak" are about the worst the ski horror may expect. One or two stronger managers may use the threat of taking away a tow ticket, but so far I haven't heard of this being done.

The danger of the fast, often out-of-control skier increases in direct ratio to the number of slower skiers between him and his final stop. Seldom is the danger appreciated by the schussbomber.

A schussbomber, by the way, is the type who schusses (runs straight) downhill at the highest speed he can attain. Kannonen is merely another name for the same menace.

Apparently never having heard of calling "track" (left or right), he has no means of warning those on lower slopes of his coming. He firmly believes he's ahead of him should make way. If they don't, it is a case of bashing on through and occasional moans from those left with bruises or breaks are lost in the slipstream, past his hooded ears.

The increasing popularity of recreational skiing makes slope safety one of the major problems facing operators.

Safety Rules Should Be Enforced

The schussbomber has one thing in his favor. Usually, he can ski well.

On the other hand, there is the novice who believes the only way down a slope is following the fall line from one end to the other. Frequently this "live dangerously" type, seldom a "her," can neither stop nor turn. Not all accidents can be prevented, but schussbombers types last season caused enough injuries to indicate that resorts must initiate their own rules for slope safety. These should be enforced by patrols with concern for the recreational skier, not the Olympic hopeful. Beginners should be taught skiing courtesy.

Skiing is not dangerous. Skiers are!

Henry's Slump Soccer Puzzle

What's happened to Henry Vanderhorst?

Heading into the final half of the Pacific Coast Soccer League schedule, the quick-and-nippy Victoria United winger's play is one of the puzzles that surround the team.

Six goals made Vanderhorst United's second highest scorer last season. Dave Stothard topped 'em all with 13.

The previous season Vanderhorst counted only two in regular season play, but had three timely goals in Anderson Cup play.

Heading into Saturday's match at Royal Athletic Park, against last-place Vancouver Wallace, Vanderhorst is the only regular United forward who has yet to score a goal this season.

Granted, the little Dutchman was out of action for the first few weeks because of an ankle injury. The layoff appeared to affect his confidence and speed.

Of late, however, Vanderhorst has started to show flashes of his old form. In United's last two home appearances, for example, Henry was unfortunate in not connecting for three or four goals.

And goals are what United

Girls' Event At Vic High

Basketball takes on a new—and prettier—look at Victoria High tonight.

A four-team senior girls' jamboree, the first of its kind, has drawn teams from Queen Elizabeth (Surrey), Qualicum and Oak Bay as well as from the host school.

Qualicum and Oak Bay open it at 7:30 tonight. Vic High will play Queen Elizabeth at 8:45.

Same times prevail for the windup games Saturday night.

South Africans Take Honors on First Day

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—A 23-minute spell just after lunch in which Australia lost three vital wickets for 21 runs gave South Africa the honors when the third cricket test began here today.

Australia slumped to 129 for 5 before Brian Booth (75) and Richie Benaud (43) added 100 in two hours to stem the rout a little.

But Australia was all out for 260 and at the close South Africa was 11 for 1 after a keenly fought day's play.

Fast bowler Peter Pollock was South Africa's hero. He passed a fitness test on his pulled hamstring muscle shortly before the start and then went on to claim 5 for 13 in the Australian innings.

Pollock sent back Bobby Simpson, 58, and Barry Shepherd for a duck in Australia's post-lunch collapse and later dismissed Benaud, Neil Hawke and Wally Grout in 25 balls at a cost of 11 runs.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The volunteer who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of World Book Encyclopedia to Carol Worth, age 11, of Kentfield, Calif., for her question:

How do refracting and reflecting telescopes differ?

Refracting telescopes were invented first, and the biggest of them is in the Yerkes Observatory in Wisconsin. It scans the skies with a glass lens 40 inches wide. Reflecting telescopes are far more powerful, and the granddaddy of them all is housed high on Mt. Palomar in California. Its mirror-bright, round eye is 200 inches wide.

A telescope is a clever gadget for making faraway things look near. It does the trick with curved glass lenses or mirrors or with both. A simple refracting telescope refracts or bends light rays through glass lenses. One end of the tube is pointed at a distant object and the viewer looks through an eye-piece at the opposite end.

A reflecting telescope has mirrors for reflecting the light, and in most of these instruments the eye-piece is on the side of the tube. Halfway up the tube is a small, curved mirror. Light from a star is gathered by the big mirror, sent up the tube to the small mirror and reflected down again into the eye-piece.

As the earth turns, the heavenly bodies seem to move over the sky. A large telescope of any type is controlled by clock-work machinery which keeps it trained on a moving object. Cameras can be fitted to the eye-piece, and many of the photographic plates need long exposures. The work of the big reflecting telescope is all done by photography. Long exposures of the far distant skies are made on plates and later studied by the astronomers.

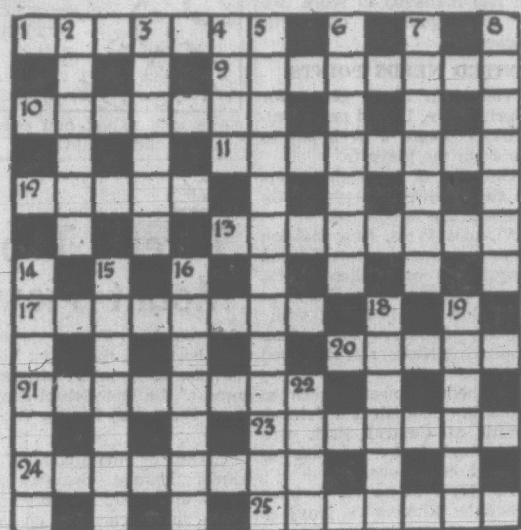

Controlled By Machinery

The image gathered by the big, bowl-shaped mirror is reflected up to the little flat mirror inside the tube. From there it is reflected to the eye-piece, where it is magnified. Some reflecting telescopes have a round hole in the centre of the big mirror. The eye-piece is behind the hole at the

SOLUTION MONDAY

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Peggy Lee'll pull down $16,500 a week when she opens at the Americana Royal Box April 27 (switching over from Basin St. East) and that'll make her about the highest-paid gal star on B'way, right up there with the boys, Eddie Fisher, Sammy Davis and Harry Belafonte. We hear the Americana upped her price $5Gs to lure her to the swingin' new West Side.

Cary Grant'll pay a handsome reward and ask no questions for the return of a mink stolen from the apt. of his girl friend Dian Cannon who's playing "Rosemary" in the Chicago company of "How to Succeed." Grant had the coat made for Dian by NY furrier Lee Ritter. He says the number on the inside pelts is 27241 and intimates that the coat "wasn't cheap." He feels that it may have landed in a hock shop. (Check your mink numbers, pussycats.)

Elk Wallach flew off to Cambodia to film "Lord Jim" with Peter O'Toole, leaving his B.W.

Anne Jackson, very lonely, Wallach explained to us before he left that they've even forced the current nudity wave on him.

"Honest," he said, "they're making me get my head shaved, so my skull will go nude. But I'm growing a beard to make up for it."

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: You can say this for those ready-mixes — the next generation won't have trouble making cakes like mother used to make.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: It's getting so that all a man can afford to put aside for a rainy day is a pair of dry socks.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Few people blame themselves until they have exhausted all other possibilities." — Anon.

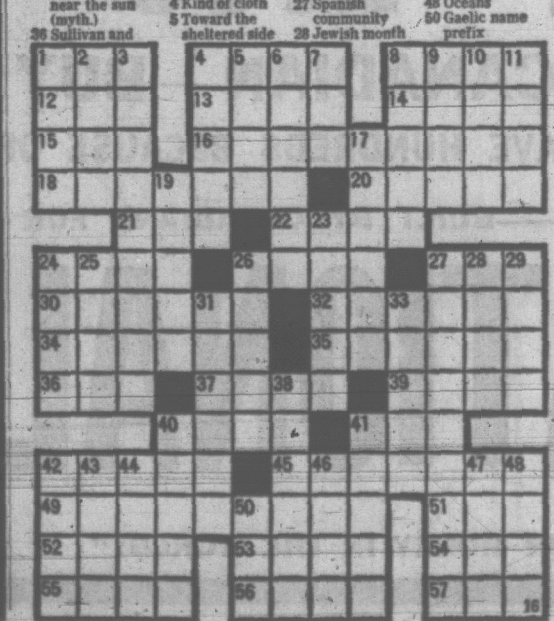

EARL'S PEARLS: Modern kids think there are two kinds of rainbows—one in color, and one in black and white. — Shelby Friedman, Dallas.

"I think my landlord asks too much for the rent," complained Frank Gorshin. "Why, last month he asked five times."

That's earl, brother.

Elvis Presley
Capitol Theatre

Elvis is back—with us for a week, and in this latest offering, seems to have developed into a kind of screen Superman. In turn, he is sailor, aerial acrobat, high diver, singer, dancer, lifeguard and general all-round lady-killer. He doesn't have to rehearse his songs—just drops into any cabaret that takes his fancy and monopolizes whatever song and dance routine happens to be in progress. Elvis may be swimming in some lonely lagoon, or speeding down the highway in a rocket sports car, but whenever he feels like singing, a huge, invisible orchestra chimes in with a close-fitting accompaniment. All very discouraging to Victoria singers and musicians.

who have to sweat out their effects in strenuous rehearsal. But it's all good fun and no harm done, and I have a notion Elvis will charm more than the traditional teen-age group during his celluloid visit here.

To start with, Elvis is a sailor on a motor launch which arrives in Acapulco Harbor. He meets a lovely female bull-fighter (Elsa Cardenas) and a dusky shoe-shine boy (Larry Domsin) who offers to find him work as a singer if he will employ him as manager. The boy persuades a hotel owner to let Elvis fill in as lifeguard and singer at night when the star is absent or ill. Presley is charmed both by the female bull-fighter and Ursula Andrus, daughter of a hotel chef, and between them the two girls manage to land him in lots of trouble.

It transpires that Presley was once part of a circus act in which his brother missed a catch and fell to his death. From this he developed a fear of heights and seeks escape from it in Acapulco.

The rather banal story is relieved by beautiful color shots of Acapulco, the lively personality of Elvis himself, the slick song and dance routines—and the epic moment when Elvis deputizes for a high diver who has dislocated his shoulder in a fist-fight with Elvis. Lots of fun if you can take it.

Speakers Explain World Federalism Wednesday Night

Three speakers will talk on "What Is World Federalism?" at a public meeting of Victoria branch, World Federalists of Canada, Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Holyrood House.

Addressing the meeting will be Professor C. S. Burchill, national WFC president, and MPs David Groos (Victoria) and George Chatterton (Esquimalt-Saanich).

Mr. Chatterton and Mr. Groos will explain the work of the Canadian Parliamentary Association of World Federalists.

Local president Dr. L. Austin Wright said the meeting's purpose will be to provide answers to prospective members who wish to ask questions about the WFC movement.

He said the membership of the Victoria branch is now 150, which is a 75-per-cent increase over last year.

"We plan to establish branches elsewhere on the Island and organize student branches," he added.

Film Tonight Shows Mediterranean Life

Legends of the Mediterranean, the beauty of the sea and life of its people will be told in this weekend's film program in the series, The World Around Us, at Oak Bay Junior Secondary School.

Lecture accompanying the movie will be given by the film maker Gene Wiancko, a noted explorer and producer of documentaries.

He tells a story of the fishermen, gypsies, artists, peasants, millionaires and ordinary people living from the boot of Italy to the jaws of Gibraltar.

In recent years Mr. Wiancko has specialized in educational color movies of the dangerous zones, along the Iron Curtain. This film, The Legendary Mediterranean, is a bright change of pace.

Showings at 8 tonight and Saturday in the school auditorium. Admissions are $1 for adults, 50 cents for students.

CLC ADVISES:

Fight Recession With Income Tax

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress said today Canada has not made enough use of fiscal and monetary policies to promote economic expansion.

The CLC said in a brief to the Carter royal commission on taxation that a flexible fiscal taxation for curbing inflationary policy could be designed around pressures and staving off business recessions. This would be "one of the potentially most powerful counter-cyclical weapons available to the government."

The 1,080,000-member organization said the federal government should be provided with additional powers so it could use income tax more effectively for fiscal purposes.

Now, tax rates can be altered only by Parliament and "this may result in a slow and cumbersome use of fiscal policy when economic conditions warrant swifter action."

"Parliament is not always in session and may be away at precisely the time that the economy needs the kind of stimulus that reduction in certain income tax rates may be able to give it."

The CLC said the Canadian tax system should always be based firmly on the ability-to-pay principle and personal income taxes can best comply with this ideal. Sales taxes were regressive since they tended to hit harder at those who could least afford it.

COMPARES TAX RATES

However, even personal income taxes were not as progressive as often assumed. The marginal rate increased by 21.4 per cent on the second $1,000 of taxable income while there was only a 12.5 increase when taxable income rose to $25,000 from $15,000. The marginal rate increased another 11.1 per cent when taxable income rose to $40,000 from $25,000.

The brief dismissed arguments that the rates are too progressive on high incomes.

Birth Clinic Brings Wrath Of Church

WALLASEY, England (Reuters)—A Roman Catholic woman doctor, herself mother of seven, has been refused the sacraments of her church since she opened a family-planning clinic here four months ago, it was revealed Thursday.

Dr. Anne Biezenak, 33-year-old wife of a Polish-born ship's steward, was accused by the Bishop of Shrewsbury, Msgr. Eric Grasar, of causing a scandal.

The bishop's secretary confirmed the ban on Dr. Biezenak.

"The opening of the clinic was a publicly-known fact," he said. "That was at the beginning of September and since then she has been refused the sacraments of the church."

Dr. Biezenak said she did not regret her actions.

"I must do what I consider right," she added.

ments that the rates are too progressive on high incomes. "Far from being too steeply progressive, the income tax structure at the upper income levels tends to become much more of a proportional than a progressive tax, heavily favoring those with larger incomes."

The 20-per-cent tax credit on dividend income made the top marginal rates more of academic interest than real importance. Most people in the top tax brackets probably received a "considerable portion" of their income from dividends and the credit would reduce both the marginal and average rates.

"It seems to us that the present 20-per-cent tax credit on dividend income is excessive, and serves to make the income tax more regressive than it needs to be."

The brief said the old age security tax, applying to the first $3,000 of taxable income, also makes personal income tax less progressive, and the recent increase "has only worsened what was already a bad situation."

It means that a person with a $3,000 taxable income pays the same amount as someone with a $25,000 income. A study should be made in an effort to make sales taxes less regressive, the brief suggested. "It would seem to us that a sales tax could bear a greater relation to income if the sales tax on a Cadillac were higher than on a lower priced automobile."

LAKONIA SURVIVORS WANT PROBE

LONDON (Reuters) — A number of survivors from the sunken Greek liner Lakonia "this week formed an association to press for an official government inquiry into the disaster in which 128 people were killed or lost."

The ship caught fire and sank during a special "Christmas cruise" last month.

They want the inquiry to answer the question: "Did the owners or authorities, whether British or Greek, fulfil their duties in making sure that the ship was safe as a passenger liner?"

Austrians Praise Former Chancellor

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Former chancellor Julius Raab, 72, died Wednesday night, remembered by his countrymen as the man who led Austria back to independence after the Nazi and post-war occupation.

Austrian leaders of both parties praised Raab, a Conservative, for his part in getting the Austrian independence treaty of 1955.

President Adolf Schaerf, a Socialist, said Raab's political career reached a climax "when the state treaty and the withdrawal of foreign troops from Austria came about."

Arthur Mayse

In one of our well-treed Victoria suburbs lives a man who is infested by a woodpecker.

At earliest dawn, the little creature takes station on his house wall, close under the roof. After a few warmup taps, it launches into a tattoo that a regimental drummer might envy.

Sharp at 8:30, the feathered maestro ends his concert and flies away.

When he came to this corner for help—as if we didn't have troubles enough of our own—the afflicted householder made it plain that he had nothing against woodpeckers.

"We all of us love that noisy little bug-eater," he told me. "Even if it were legal to shoot him, I wouldn't dream of knocking him off."

"But he's already drilled through a plywood sheet and a two-by-two, and we're expecting him in the living room any day now. Then there's the noise. You know... when we're trying to pack in a last half-hour of sleep..."

Never having been infested by woodpeckers, I could only suggest that he sheath his house in aluminum siding. Either that, or leave his house to the bird and go live in a tree.

Neither choice pleased him, so we decided to seek counsel from Dr. Cliff Carl of the Provincial Museum, an authority on the ways of nature's children.

Dr. Carl came up with a solution quick as you can say "peckerwood."

Netting, he informed us, was the answer.

"You see," he explained, "the bird, which is almost certainly a flicker rather than a woodpecker, is not drilling for insects. It wants to make as much noise as it can, and has found an excellent sounding-board."

Why, we wanted to know, should the flicker behave in this unseemly fashion?

It could be courtship, we were told, although it's pretty early in the season for flickers to be beating out love-songs on the sides of people's houses. More likely the visitant was announcing to would-be intruders that here was his territory.

Or he could just like the sound of his own drumming, the ham.

In any case, wire screening or netting would discourage him.

"Except," Dr. Carl warned, "if this flicker really likes the house, you'll have to keep moving the screen."

The other morning I ate a hearty breakfast and set off for work at peace with the world.

At 10 o'clock I dropped in for coffee at a newsmen's haunt and supplemented the brew with a fat yeast doughnut.

Just after 11, I tapped our office dispenser for the biggest chocolate bar a dime can buy, and an hour later, staked myself to a generous lunch.

So it went for the rest of the day, nibble-nibble-nibble. This, I'm told by others who have walked the same road, is what happens when you give up cigarette smoking. Your appetite improves. Eating becomes a pleasure instead of a casual taking on of fuel.

That's all very well, but how long does this urge to gluttonize last? I'm not precisely skinny now, and at this rate, I'll be busting out all over with spring still weeks away.

The alternative, of course, is to resume smoking. But I've now put nine days between myself and the weed—longer, frankly, than I ever expected to endure.

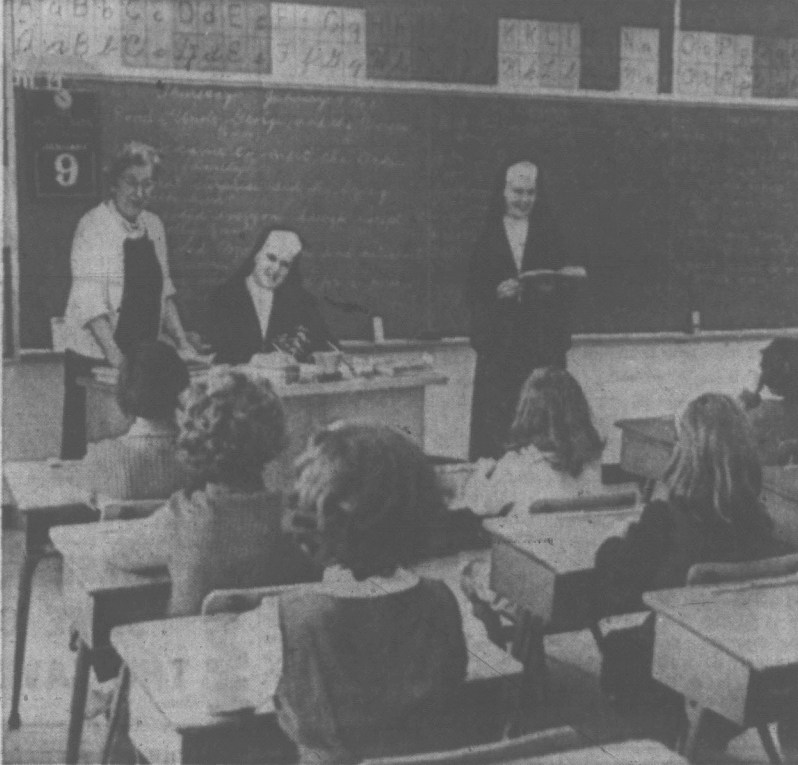

I may backslide, but believe me, I'd sooner not. Even now, I can go quite a long time, maybe 10 minutes, without thinking how nice it would be to light up and drag deep. Also, I'm learning who and what to watch out for.

The worst times, for a very new non-smoker, are after meals, at coffee-breaks, or when one relaxes in good company with drink in fist.

In other words, the times when a cigarette used to be most satisfying.

And the guy to watch out for isn't the one who puffs smoke in your face, leaves his pack lying handy, or asks how much longer you expect to stay off the habit.

He's the ex-smoker three years reformed who insists on letting you know in doleful tones that it never really grows easier!

Jury Suggests Street Light At Death Scene

A coroner's jury ruled today Mrs. Mae Preston, killed Oct. 23 in a Trans-Canada Highway collision, died accidentally.

They added a rider to the verdict urging that a mercury vapor light be installed at the Helmecken-Trans-Canada intersection.

Mrs. Preston, the young mother of four children, was returning with three married girl friends from an evening of bowling.

She was a front seat passenger in a car driven north on the highway by Mrs. Ellen Carter, 659 Kelly, when the small sedan was in collision with a car turning left off the highway onto Helmecken.

'CAME UPON ME'

John Herron, 4546 Stratford, driver of the other car involved, testified at the inquest he started to make his turn confident that he would be clear of the oncoming car.

"I took my eyes off the other car to make my turn, and when I got started round the corner the car came upon me quicker than I expected," he said.

Cons. M. G. Markell of Colwood RCMP said that when he got there, the small sedan was heavily damaged across the front and still in its proper northbound lane.

The other car was in the intersection facing west, and was damaged to the right front fender.

The weather was clear and the road was dry, said Cons. Markell, and the visibility was good—at least 500 yards.

Mrs. Carter, driver of the small sedan, told the inquest she saw the oncoming lights and assumed the car was going to pass until "I felt a burning in my eyes, and that's all I remember."

Mr. Herron testified that he had not stopped before making his turn, and had given a hand signal because his car was not equipped with flashing light signals.

Mrs. Preston died of brain damage and internal bleeding, testified Dr. Garth Walther, who performed the autopsy.

McPHERSON PLAYHOUSE

Theatre Drawings 'Really Exciting'

Mayor R. B. Wilson today described working drawings for a $375,000 renovation and expansion of the old Pantages Theatre "a really exciting prospect."

Civic precinct committee approved the plans, drawn up by architect Alan J. Hodgson, and recommended formal adoption at next Thursday's council meeting to clear the way for a tender call.

Mayor Wilson also suggested that the theatre—bequeathed to the city by T. S. McPherson whose estate also will pay virtually the entire renovation cost—should be named McPherson Playhouse.

REDECORATED

Mr. Hodgson said the theatre structure itself will be redecorated in traditional crimson and gilt with some minor changes inside.

But besides priming up, complete re-wiring and installation of new heating, the building will remain unaltered because it is in good shape.

The 900 seats will be re-upholstered at a cost of up to $12 apiece rather than spending $40 each for new seats. The crushed-velour main curtain also is in excellent shape, requiring only cleaning—at a cost of $100 instead of the $10,000 a new curtain would have required.

The two-storey foyer will provide ground-to-ceiling windows facing the centennial square and will permit closing in of the Government Street doors that exist at present.

Patrons will arrive from the square on foot or from the Pandora curve by car to enter at the ground floor lounge.

COFFEE BARS

A staircase will take them to the main lounge on the second floor where there will be two coffee and refreshment bars and a corridor leading to the restaurant sitting on columns and projecting into the square itself.

Mr. Hodgson said the foyer and theatre will also provide seating space, committee rooms, display areas and luncheon space for small conventions of up to 450 persons.

The present high exposed brick rear wall of the theatre will be covered with Boston Ivy in the same manner as the rear of City Hall.

Courthouse Step Closer At Duncan

The provincial cabinet has authorized purchase of a site for a new courthouse at Duncan for $65,250.

A cabinet order today authorizes purchase of two lots.

The property is owned by the city of Duncan.

MUTTS UNLIMITED

Any mutt who can claim to be a cockerspoolterrier is a lot of mutt. And "Ruffy," whose residence is at the home of Mrs. Diane Brown, 3895 Scotland Road, is a genuine cocker-what-we-said.

Which makes him a prime candidate for a leading role in the television comedy series Petticoat Junction.

Dick Wesson of Hollywood, producer of the series, is looking for a non-pedigree, non-descript, nonentity in the world of dogdom to add a little non-class to the series.

In the interest of mutts everywhere, The Times is co-operating by collecting pictures of the muttiest mutts in this area, and sending them to Mr. Wesson. He'll choose the likeliest as a candidate—excuse, canine-date—for casting in Petticoat Junction.

If you have a mutt you think might make it, TV-

IF RULES PERMIT

Number System Boon to Police

By PETE LOUDON

National registration of Canadian workers, planned this spring, could become a valuable police aid, Victoria Chief Constable John Gregory said today.

He said it will all depend on the wording of regulations covering the proposed assignment of social insurance numbers and pocket-sized identification cards.

Unless the regulations stipulate the registration system can only be used by employers and the social insurance department, the community of lawbreakers could find itself on the spot.

A man would no longer be able to disappear in Canada, not if he ever wants a job. And illegal immigrants would find it impossible to obtain work.

"It would be very valuable" if the law permits police to use social insurance numbers in making identifications, he thought.

The chief said he would like to see the system carried a step further and require pictures or fingerprints on every card.

"I've often thought a dogtag or bracelet would be invaluable, particularly in the identification of persons who have collapsed or of bodies found in the harbor."

"If (national registration) would be useful, too, to the public in cashing cheques. Such a system could save the taxpayer a great deal of money every year," Chief Gregory added.

The federal government will issue a number to every employed person in Canada between April 1 and early July. The program, announced Monday by Labor Minister MacEachen, is the biggest of its kind since the national registration of the Second World War. At that time, every person over 16 was registered.

Worker registration by Unemployment Insurance Commission has been spotty. Teachers and agricultural workers, domestics, some part-time workers and all persons earning more than $5,460 are not covered by UIC nor are they registered.

All employees, insured under UIC or not, will be asked to fill in special forms. The approximately five million workers who come under UIC regulations will risk court action and fines if they refuse to provide the requested information.

The other employed persons, approximately 1,500,000 cannot be compelled to fill in forms according to preliminary advice from Ottawa. But Mr. MacEachen suggested the initial registration eventually will lead to a single numbering system for all people in Canada, young, old, rich, poor, employed or unemployed, at school or in the kitchen.

The system also opens up possibilities for use in compiling a permanent voters' list. The forms will ask a person's name, address, sex, birthday, mother's maiden name and father's first name.

The information will be punched on cards for electronic data processing.

Registration is to be carried out under authority of the National Employment Service offices. A spokesman at Victoria NES said the local office is already drawing up lists of all employers.

Seven officials from Vancouver NES offices are going to Ottawa Jan. 19 to be briefed on the huge task ahead.

PRIVATE BILLS

Realtors Seek Law To Raise Standards

By FRANK BUTTER

B.C. realtors are seeking a special act of the legislature to raise standards in their business.

It is one of six private bills to be presented to the House at the session starting Jan. 23. Each bill will be sponsored by a member of the legislature.

The Real Estate Institute of B.C. wants a stronger status than its present one under the Societies Act.

Its proposed special act would enable the institute to set standards of ethics and competency, discipline members and conduct recognized university courses.

Irwin Davies, institute secretary, said the legislation would not give it the power to license realtors.

Herb Fullerton, Vancouver realtor who has been working on the legislation, said details would be released after a directors' meeting Monday.

"The aim is to raise the standards of practice and the vocation," he said.

At present the institute is not allowed to grant degrees under terms of the Societies Act.

The act also limits disciplining members to a maximum $5 fine.

The city of Vancouver will seek to amend its charter in another private bill.

It wants power to raise salaries for the mayor and aldermen.

Mayor William Rathie now gets $12,000 a year, aldermen $3,600.

They want $16,000 for the mayor and $4,800 for aldermen.

Another private bill will seek an amendment to the Shaughnessy Heights Building Restrictions Act which controls development of the Vancouver district.

The bill would allow housing development on land reserved for a bowling green.

Two insurance companies are seeking incorporation by special acts of the legislature.

The B.C. Motorist Insurance Co. wants to provide auto, marine, fire and theft insurance.

United Home Mutual Insurance Co. wants to go into the life insurance field, and take over the operations of the United Home Security Association, presently governed by the Societies Act.

The sixth bill will come from the city of Prince Rupert which wants to amend an agreement under which the crown holds in trust lands of the old Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. The city wants to free the land for housing development.

Labor Council Election Set

Election of officers for 1964 will be held Wednesday at Victoria Labor Council.

The meeting, first of the year, will be held at Union Centre, 2750 Quadra, at 8 p.m.

Nominations will be taken before the election.

HIS HONOR, HIS PANTS, HER CATCH

A prowler ran off with a man's trousers early today but the man's wife took up the chase and recovered them.

There was $200 in the pants, belonging to Magistrate H. Elliott of Regina, Sask. He and Mrs. Elliott were asleep in their room at Bel Isle Motel, 427 Belleville, when a prowler entered through the unlocked door.

He crept over the carpeted floor, lifted the magistrate's pants and was on his way out when Mrs. Elliott awakened. She shouted and the thief ran.

Mrs. Elliott jumped out of bed after the thief who panicked and dropped the trousers at the doors of the elevator. He escaped before police arrived.

Protection Racket Charged

The provincial labor department has been asked to investigate charges of a protection racket in a Vancouver restaurant.

"We have been advised that girls employed in a Vancouver restaurant have been approached to hand over a portion of their tips and wages as payola," E. P. O'Neal, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said today.

He said it "could become a matter for the police."

Mr. O'Neal and some of the girls met Al Little, supervisor of the B.C. labor department office, in Vancouver Thursday.

"The labor department is checking the whole affair," Mr. O'Neal said.

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said he knows nothing of the charges at present.

STATEMENTS

Mr. O'Neal said he had signed statements about the charges.

But he declined to identify the restaurant or the person who allegedly sought money from his waitresses.

"It wasn't the Mafia," Mr. O'Neal said, "but we believe it was a person known to the management of the restaurant."

Mr. O'Neal said he has information that the girls were asked to pay $2 per shift "to somebody else."

"They refused but agreed to give $1."

RETURNED

"The next night the money was returned and they were told it was not worth while."

"Then it was suggested they pool their tips and a certain percentage would be taken."

"They were told unless they agreed they might lose their jobs."

Mr. O'Neal said one of the employees at the restaurant phoned to tell him about the situation and he took it up with the government.

Ask The Times

Q. When the 1962 Grey Cup Cup was played in the fog in Toronto, did the people decide to finish the game the same day, play another game the next day or finish the game the next day? If they finished the game the same day or the next day how many minutes did they play? J. A.

A. Game was completed the following day with 9:26 remaining to be played. There was no scoring during this time and Winnipeg outlasted Hamilton 28-27.

Q. Is there a city bylaw or regulation which prevents hedges or bushes from protruding beyond private property limits?

A. Yes; the bylaw states that property owners must keep hedges, shrubs, etc., trimmed so they will not obstruct the visibility of pedestrian or vehicular traffic.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve controversies or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Serve These Foreign Foods And Add Variety to Diet

By PENNY SAVER

If your family complains about the same foods day after day, why not occasionally treat them to foods from another country?

For instance, add variety to your breakfast menu with an English breakfast tea. Tea is packaged in its own container with coral, willow or tea blossom pattern and price ranges from $3.50 to $3.75.

Or, try a new pancake syrup from Denmark or the United States. Danish blueberry syrup is priced at 65 cents, strawberry at 79 cents and raspberry at 95 cents. Loganberry syrup from the States sells at 69 cents. Two other varieties are licorice and cinnamon, both priced at 45 cents.

Wild duck consomme is priced at 69 cents and makes a delightful first course for a meal of Scottish haggis. I'm not joking—you can buy haggis in this shop any time of the year. It's priced at 95 cents, and can be served with the traditional mashed potatoes and turnips or as a main meat course.

Those of you with a sweet tooth will enjoy French marrons glacés which sell for $2.24 and $3.95. They're preserved chestnuts, candied in sugar and corn syrup. Also available are fresh whole chestnuts priced at $1.25, and chestnut puree, 95 cents. Eight-ounce jars of marrons in vanilla flavored syrup are priced at $2.75.

To completely transform your menus, include such desserts as Italian assorted fruits in mustard flavored syrup. Price is $1.75. Or try spiced crabapples, priced at 79 cents; mint and cinnamon flavored pears, $1.19; spiced apple rings, 65 cents. Honey glazed peaches, pears, apricots and figs from Australia are priced at $1.10 a pound.

And, during the cocktail hour, why not treat your guests to cocktail meat balls with paprika, curry or celery sauce. Price is 79 cents a jar.

If you would like to make a change in your daily menu, call Penny at 382-3131 for name of shop that sells these foreign foods.

WHY GROW OLD?

BIP's Special Exercises Will Shape Your Figure

My Eight-Week Beauty Improvement Plan which I am bringing you this week is a sort of "do it yourself" project, in that you can carry out the directions at home. However, you are not really doing it alone because I am giving you detailed information and am Lowman here to encourage you.

By the way, for the next eight weeks, I will give one day a week to bring additional aid to the thousands of readers who are following BIP (Beauty Improvement Plan).

Today, I want to tell you what exercise can do for you on a reducing program. While you could not possibly exercise enough to lose pounds without dieting, nevertheless, exercise plays an important part in the battle of the bulge.

In the first place, less food and more physical activity will gradually add up to the most successful reducing. Exercise is also protection against flabbiness. Most of all it redistributes your weight more attractively. Without exercise, you would be just a smaller edition of yourself even after losing 20 pounds. Of course, you would prefer the smaller edition. However, special exercise will speed the loss in inches where you want most to lose.

THINGS TO REMEMBER ABOUT EXERCISE

1. Before beginning exercise, have your heart and blood pressure checked by a physician.
2. Concentrate on exercises which are corrective to your particular figure fault or faults.

3. Start in very slowly and build up gradually. Otherwise, you will become discouraged by sore muscles and might be tempted to stop exercising. Begin by doing a half dozen exercises 10 times a day and gradually increase until you are doing each one 30 times daily. Even if you start in slowly, you may have a few sore muscles. But, keep it up and this will soon disappear.

4. Be sure to do the exercise just exactly as directed. For instance, a bent knee when it was supposed to be held stiffly, can make a great difference in the effectiveness of an exercise.

Many women who would never have exercised except for the sake of their figure have continued on with it after their measurements were perfect. They did this because they had learned how many things regular exercise can do for one besides molding a figure. Stiff joints and constipation and chronic fatigue were banished also with inches.

There are 12 exercises in my Beauty Improvement Plan booklet. I call them champion exercises because they are the

DEAR ABBY . . .

'Nobody Is Perfek'!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My English teacher said we had to write a friendly letter to some person who lives in another city as a homework assignment, so this is what I wrote:

"Dear Abby: You are solving my problem without even noting it because I have to write a letter for my English assignment and I chose you to write to."

"I think your column is pretty good. I don't always agree with your answers but then nobody is perfect. I sure got to give you credit. It takes a lot of nerve to give those answers because you know what happens when you stick your nose in other people's business."

"Very truly yours, "F" IN ENGLISH."

DEAR ABBY: Our 19-year-old daughter (whom I'll call Jane) is serious about a 24-year-old married man who is in the process of being divorced. They were married only five months. My problem is he spends every evening here with Jane because his lawyer told him he shouldn't be seen in public with another woman yet. Meanwhile, Jane and he are getting thicker and thicker and they are talking marriage. He is a gentleman and is well able to support Jane, and we like him, but I don't think it's right for her to be planning marriage until he is free to marry, do you? My husband says he is a lot better than most of the characters Jane has gone with and we should let them be. What do you think? JANE'S MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: No matter how you phrase it, he is a married man until he is divorced—and he may never get a divorce. Your daughter should not be spending every evening with him. If he respects her, as a gentleman should respect a lady with whom he would like to spend the rest of his life, he will let her be until he has the right to talk marriage.

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor who lives next door to us keeps all her blinds up except the one that is on the window which looks right into our house. Don't you think it looks like she is trying to shut us out? We never pull the shade on the window that looks right into their house because we don't want it to look like we don't trust them. Shouldn't they do the same for us? HURT.

DEAR HURT: Not necessarily. Shades insure privacy, and you shouldn't feel "hurt" if a neighbor evidences a desire for privacy. You have the same privilege.

CONFIDENTIAL—TO "HARD-OLD WHO TRAVELS": Don't worry. If a woman really loves a man, no other man can get within a 100 feet of her.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

Necklines Hit New Low— Boyish Look Is 'Out'

By NONA DAMASKE

NEW YORK — This season, dress designer and plunger seem to have something in common. Both are plungers.

In the case of the designer, the plunging is done in daring, double exposure, deep dips or plunging cowls. Each one has his own moniker but they all end up in the same area, nearly to the waist.

Gowns that plunge both back and front give a distinct aura of mystery—the mystery being how do they stay up and what do you wear under them.

This night exposure has a daytime version, too. The dress cut high but with the deep plunging indicated by a neckline, a low-placed brooch or a slash in the fabric.

There are many capes, but I would say more cape effects than the real thing. Tunic are being done again in several versions. Dots dance before the eyes at fairly regular intervals, but small rather than large, this season.

Color-wise white is far and away the scene stealer. There is plenty of pink, too, and a fresh smattering of deepened yellow. There are many bold, brilliant prints, but black and white in abstract, contemporary, animal and polka dot designs, show up the most number of times.

Ruffles are found around necklines, edging sleeves and hemlines. The little boy look has been pushed aside. We are little girls again.

Sleevelessness is really with us this season. There are sleeveless coats, sleeveless suit jackets worn over long-sleeved dresses or blouses and even little sleeveless late-day coats to wear over long-sleeved dinner gowns. It is the jumper effect carried through the whole wardrobe.

There are more long gowns than ever and for summer you will dance in yards and yards of chiffon, organdy, lace or pure silk. There is an extraordinary amount of sparkle. You really must shimmer and shine after five.

A companion coat accompanies many of the cocktail and dinner dresses and many designers are making hair scarves to match their dresses. But they are not even distantly related to the old babushka. They are breathtakingly beautiful!

She'll Make New Home In Algeria

By ELIZABETH FORBES

On Saturday, Florence Trew starts a journey that will take her by train across the continent to New York and then in an Italian ship to Naples.

From there she will cross the Mediterranean to join husband "Michael, at Bone in Algeria.

A forester by profession, Michael Trew is presently working with C.A.R.E. in the Algerian seaside town. He handles the shipments of wheat that arrive from other countries, arranges for storage and for distribution to the people of the country.

"He is completely dedicated to this work," Mrs. Trew says. "He believes that right now it is far more important to feed the hungry peoples of the emerging countries than it is to teach them how to grow a tree."

Urge to help the starving peoples of the world was born when Mr. Trew was in Pakistan with the Colombo Plan.

"He saw the terrific starvation amongst the people there and the problems it brought with it," his wife explains.

"When he came home, he was keenly conscious of the difference in the so-called poor of our own country—where unemployment insurance and family allowances make it easy for them to live. "He couldn't stand it! So, he decided to join C.A.R.E. and try to help."

Life in Algeria will be "new and strange" to Florence Trew, but also "very interesting."

She has packed warm clothes to take with her as well as cottons for her husband has told her the climate is much like Victoria's, "only the winters are a little shorter and the summers a little hotter."

When she arrives at Bone, there will be house hunting. Mr. Trew is waiting for his wife to decide where they will live.

Checking last minute details of the long journey she starts this weekend has filled many hours recently for Mrs. Michael Trew. She has been staying recently with a brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bell, Central Avenue.

There will be furnishings to buy, too, for Mrs. Trew is taking only linens, her clothes and smaller and lighter household articles with her.

"After we are settled, I will need to learn the language," she says.

When she is settled in Bone, and has learned the language of the people, then Florence Trew intended to "take up stenography, so I can do something to help, too."

She and her husband are both color camera hobbyists and Mrs. Trew is looking forward to taking many fascinating pictures. "I've even packed a sleeping bag," she says. "I hope I'll be able to go with Michael on some of the trips he must take around the country and out into the desert."

At this moment, however, Mrs. Trew's main interest is in how she is to travel from Naples to Bone.

"No one here seems to know, so I imagine I'll have to play it by ear."

"There must be some way of getting there, even if it is only in a native boat."

Vows Heard In Chapel

Chaplain W. R. Greatrex heard marriage vows exchanged between Lesley Anne Clarke and John Edward Towers at a recent ceremony in HMCS Naden Chapel.

Parents of the principals are Mrs. Irene Beavis, 2622 Quadra Street, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Towers of Comox, B.C.

The bride wore a full-length white silk brocade gown and an elbow-length tulle veil with scalloped edges which misted from a large flower headpiece. Red roses and white stephanotis were in her bouquet.

Bridesmaids, Miss Patricia Page and Miss Joan Burkhardt wore identical full-length gowns of turquoise peau-de-soie and flower headpieces with shoulder-length tulle veils. They carried bouquets of white carnations.

Flower girl, Miss Linda O'Neill wore a floor-length pink peau-de-soie gown and rose headpiece trimmed with tulle. She carried a basket of pink and white carnations.

Best man, was Duncan Patterson and the usher was Dave Meredith.

Following a reception at the Tally-Ho, the couple left on a two-week honeymoon trip to Las Vegas, Nevada.

Demands for Rights Mark Panama History

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP)—The United States helped create the Republic of Panama early this century to realize the dream of a canal linking the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans. Now the Panamanians are demanding more rights in the U.S.-controlled Panama Canal Zone.

The United States signed a treaty with Neva Granada — now Colombia — in 1846 giving the United States transportation rights across the Isthmus of Panama. Panama then was a province of Colombia.

Early this century, the United States began negotiating with Colombia for rights to dig a canal. A 1903 agreement would have conceded these rights, but the Colombian senate rejected it, claiming terms favored the United States.

Angry inhabitants of Panama protested the senate action. Nov. 3, 1903, they rebelled and proclaimed their independence. Colombia sent troops into the Caribbean port of Colon to quell the revolt but encountered a contingent of U.S. Marines from the cruiser Nashville.

SIGN TREATY

Nov. 13, a Panamanian representative was received in Washington and the United States formally recognized Panama's independence. Five days later, the republic and the United States signed the Hay-Bunau-Varilla treaty granting the United States use of the canal zone in perpetuity, along with some extra — territorial rights, for a payment of $10,000,000 and a $250,000 annual fee.

The United States also got the right to intervene to preserve the independence of the republic and to take control of land needed at any time for the defence of the canal.

The 40-mile-long Panama Canal was opened in 1914. It cut 7,873 nautical miles off the voyage from New York to San Francisco.

In 1934, the United States agreed to increase its annual payment to Panama to $430,000 and in 1953 the payment rose to $1,930,000.

OBJECT TO STATUS

But as Panama developed, nationalists complained that the 1903 treaty reduced the Latin American nation to the status of a U.S. protectorate. They objected to the expropriation of land for defence purposes and to the U.S. monopoly of trans-isthmian traffic.

After years of strained relations, the United States in 1935 negotiated four new treaties. They surrendered U.S. rights to intervene and protect the stability of the Latin American nation. However, the United States maintained its perpetual control over the Canal Zone.

After the Second World War, refusal of the Canal Zone Company and government — both U.S. government agencies — to fly the Panamanian flag in the zone was a major target for Panamanian nationalists. They also complained that U.S. employees of the Canal Company got preferential treatment over Panamanian employees. Aritation began to be heard for Panama to take over the canal.

STUDENTS DEMONSTRATE

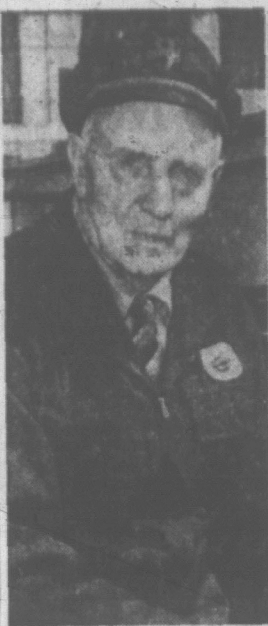

In the late 1950s, students demonstrated repeatedly along the zone border and several times tried to invade the territory to plant Panama's flag. In 1959, six Panamanians were killed in a flag riot.

In September, 1960, President Eisenhower ordered the Panamanian flag flown in a park in the zone as evidence of the Latin republic's titular sovereignty over the area.

Later, sites were allocated for display of both the Panamanian and U.S. flags in the zone, side by side. U.S. residents of the zone were not pleased. When the zone administration this week ordered no flags flown outside U.S. schools, American students began agitating to fly the U.S. flag alone. Retaliation by Panamanian students touched off violence Thursday night.

Panamanian politicians complain repeatedly that their country doesn't get enough from the canal. U.S. officials reply that the canal isn't the moneymaker the Panamanians think it is, that it pays the United States less than $4,000,000 a year profit plus interest on the net American investment of $480,000,000. Tolls have not been raised since 1914, however.

In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1962, a total of 11,149 ships paid $37,289,705 in tolls and transported 67,524,552 tons of cargo through the waterway.

CAPT. ROSKELLEY ... rites Saturday

Waterfront Favorite Capt. Reg Dies at 79

By MONTE ROBERTS

The waterfront will say good-bye to a favorite character when funeral services are held Saturday for Capt. William Reginald (Reg) Roskelley, who died suddenly Wednesday in his 80th year.

His death brought shocked surprise to friends who felt that Capt. Reg was destined to go on forever, animated, brisk of speech and movement, blessed with a memory that could take him back to the days of Victoria's earliest growing pains.

Capt. Reg was a native son, who grew up with Victoria despite frequent journeys into other parts of the world, notably Alaska and California, where he played "honkey-tonk" piano for amusement and money.

TOWBOATER

His main interest, though, was "towboating," a profession he excelled at until his retirement — at age 75 — four years ago.

At that time he was skipper of Island Rustler, one of the busiest of Island Tug and Barge's bustling harborcraft. When Capt. Reg retired, the company retired the Island Rustler, too. He was its first and last skipper, having first been in command when it was called the Dorothy and owned by Gardner Cowboat and sons.

Capt. Reg was born on North Park Street Oct. 26, 1884, and

Hobo Locked 4 Days in Boxcar

EDMONTON (CP) — A man whose legs were amputated below the knee after being frozen said Thursday four days in a locked railway freight car and three days under a pile of pipe on Edmonton's south side were included in the chain of events ending with the operation.

Frank Morimoto of Fort McMurray, Alta., was admitted to hospital, Oct. 29 after being found wrapped in cardboard under the pipe.

In a first-person story in the Journal, he says he hopped a westbound freight for three days.

"My feet must have frozen," Mr. Morimoto says, "because when I got to Edmonton I had to crawl on my hands and knees over the track."

"After a while, I couldn't crawl any more, so I got a piece of cardboard and made myself into a parcel under the pile of pipe."

He says he spent three days like that before police hauled him out.

Traffic Death

VANCOUVER (CP) — Marcel Dionne, 45, was killed Thursday night and four other persons injured in a two-car collision at an intersection in neighboring Coquitlam.

His wife, Cecile, was in fair condition in hospital with head and internal injuries and his son-in-law, Bonaventure Naudi, 32, owner of the car, was in fairly good condition.

U.S. Out to Increase Share of Wheat Sales

WASHINGTON (CP) — Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman said Thursday night the United States expects to increase its share of the world wheat market, using "every resource at our command including trade and aid."

"Competition for commercial markets of the world is getting tougher and tougher," Freeman said.

"Our trading partners have made it clear by action and by word that they intend to sell in world markets and that they will make new terms when necessary in order to sell wheat," he said.

"We have made it equally clear that the U.S. will not take second place in the grain mar-

SS Executioner 'Obeyed Orders'

FRANKFURT, West Germany (Reuters)—The last adjutant of the infamous Auschwitz concentration camp told a court here today he first suspected what was happening there "because of the reek of burning bodies hung oppressively over the camp."

Former SS (Elite Guard) Capt. Karl Hoecker, now a 52-year-old cashier, has been accused of running the Auschwitz gas chambers and selecting victims for extermination. He said: "I learned of those dreadful things with horror. But what was I to do? I could only obey the orders of my commandant."

Hoecker, second of the 22 accused camp guards to be interrogated at West Germany's biggest war crimes trial, said: "When I went to Auschwitz in May, 1944, I had no idea of the SS human extermination machinery and of the gas chambers."

"I only heard about it later and suspected something frightful because of the reek of burning bodies, which hung oppressively over the camp."

The 22 guards, most of whom have lived comparatively normal lives since the end of the war, are charged with mass murder and a variety of lesser offences committed at Auschwitz.

Hoecker said that in his time Auschwitz was divided into three camps, each with its own command structure. He was adjutant only of the main camp, with responsibility for correspondence and the guards' welfare.

He said he had never entered the prison camp proper, where atrocities were a daily routine.

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — A deputy commandant at the Nazi Auschwitz death camp, where between 2,500,000 and 4,000,000 inmates were killed, Thursday insisted he was only an innocent bystander.

Robert Mulka's denials of involvement in the mass murders brought grins, chuckles

Richter Will Beef Up 4-H Club Farm Groups

The British Columbia government will put more beef into its 4-H Club program this year, Agriculture Minister Frank Richter said today.

"We have got some plans for further expansion this year, Mr. Richter said.

"We intend to increase the staff of the 4-H branch to keep pace with the growth of the program."

One addition to be made as soon as possible after April 1, start of the new financial year, is an assistant to 4-H supervisor Sig Peterson, he said.

Mr. Richter said British Columbia's 4-H program was extended last year to include several Indian communities for the first time.

A new beef club was formed at Duncan and promotional work was started in three communities in the Terrace area. "These people want to get in, and we believe it is doing something to help our Indian population," Mr. Richter said.

There are now 3,000 4-H Club members in the province. "They're a great bunch," Mr. Richter said.

"They have earned a grand mark for themselves right across Canada."

Mr. Richter said that while only about 10 per cent end up as farmers, 4-H training (it stands for head, heart, hands and health) makes them leaders in other fields.

"They are our leaders for tomorrow."

Mr. Richter said his department began to build up its 4-H division when he became minister in 1960, and he intends to continue the expansion.

Press Ownership Law 'Appalling'

TORONTO (CP) — International publisher Roy Thompson said Thursday he would be "appalled" at any government legislation to regulate and restrict foreign ownership of Canadian newspapers and periodicals.

Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday in Ottawa that he expects to make known the government's intentions on the question of foreign control of or injury to Canadian communications mediums.

He told a press conference the cabinet had considered legislative steps but that did not mean a decision had been made for or against action.

NO MYSTERY about what this picture is: it is the Naraimo Diefenbunker out in the open where all can see it. Built by the federal government, it is still being equipped, but should be ready for use in a spring civil defence exercise, according to B.C. officials. (Agnes Flett photo.)

No Mystery on Diefenbunker Says Wallace

Civil defence officials today debunked the mystery Diefenbunker.

"There's no mystery in it whatsoever," said deputy provincial secretary L. J. Wallace, whose post includes administration of B.C. civil defence and liaison with Ottawa.

The Diefenbunker lies beneath a grassy mound off Harwood Road on the outskirts of Nanaimo. It is the disaster headquarters for provincial, civil and army officials in B.C. It hasn't been tried out yet, because not all the necessary "equipment" is installed, Mr. Wallace said. But he dismissed reports that it is a place of mystery and secrecy.

Some aspects of the Diefenbunker, named after the leader of the government that ordered it built, are classified, Mr. Wallace said. "Everybody and his dog can't get into it," Mr. Wallace said. But he thought members of the Press would be allowed in next Spring when it is used for a civil defence exercise.

DUNCAN—The Cowichan Airport Development Committee has picked a location two miles from downtown Duncan as tentative site for an airport.

A committee spokesman said Thursday the site is between Duncan and Glenora, just 1.5 miles from Duncan Post Office.

The committee, comprised of area private pilots and members of Duncan Junior Chamber of Commerce, has been studying the idea of building an airport since last spring.

Committee chairman Terry Kinch said the study showed the airfield would be "extremely practical." He estimated cost at about $3,000.

Mr. Kinch said the site is now being studied by transport department officials.

He said the site, about 40 acres for a 2,500-foot strip or 55 acres for a 4,000-foot strip, is on Indian land but both the Cowichan Indian Band council and an Indian affairs department representative have responded favorably to the idea of a rental agreement.

DUNCAN—Joe Frumento was elected to succeed Harold Whitfield as chairman of the Cowichan school board at the first meeting of 1964 Thursday night. Mr. Whitfield didn't seek re-election this year.

Pat Mason was elected vice-president.

DUNCAN—A total of 1,038 jobless people registered for employment in December compared with 1,270 for the same period a year ago, Robert S. Robinson, manager of the National Employment Office, reported Thursday.

He said many of the jobless are loggers laid off from Up-Island and mainland camps due to adverse weather conditions.

DUNCAN—Members of the Royal Canadian Legion here will hold their joint installation meeting Saturday evening.

Regular meeting is scheduled for Monday at 8 p.m. The annual Robbie Burn's Night dance will be held in the Legion Hall on Saturday, Jan. 25.

NANAIMO—A tax increase for Nanaimo has been indicated by Ald. Doug Greer, finance committee chairman. The city is expected this year to provide for a family and juvenile court, salary for two probation officers, a magistrate and clerk and quarters.

"We have many problems and we must face the bill," the alderman said.

NANAIMO—A $1,000,000 16-storey apartment project will start Monday here, according to Doug Robinson, head of Robinson Construction Ltd., which has been awarded the contract.

The building is said to be the tallest on Vancouver Island. The site is on a rock bluff on Front Street and Comox Avenue corner overlooking the harbor.

The 87-suite block is expected to be completed in about 12 months, Mr. Robinson said. It is being built for F. Maurice McGregor of Satellite Estates Ltd., of Victoria, with Jack Geisler of Newcastle Realty Ltd. in Nanaimo as local agents.

Mr. McGregor also heads the company that built the de luxe Rudyard Kipling apartment block in Oak Bay.

CAMPBELL RIVER—A Victoria alderman predicted Thursday that Campbell River will be a city in 10 years. Ald. Geoff Edgelow told a Rotary Club meeting the opening of the Haida route to the North will do much towards the expansion of Campbell River.

Mr. Edgelow is on a special "survey" trip to the northern part of the Island.

Death Toll in Panama 15 As New Clashes Break Out

Diplomatic Ties With U.S. Cut

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Broadcasting Company said today it had received a report that two Americans had been lynched by a Panamanian mob in Chiriqui, Panama.

PANAMA CITY (UPI)—Mobs battled U.S. army troops along the canal zone border today and Panamanian President Robert F. Chirari threatened to renounce all treaties with the United States, presumably including use of the vitally strategic Panama Canal.

PANAMA CITY (AP)—Five Panamanians were reported killed and 96 wounded in new gun fighting today with U.S. troops on the border of the U.S. Canal Zone. This brought the death toll in the violence which erupted Thursday night to 15, including three U.S. soldiers.

The figures were reported by the presidential press office. There was no information on new casualties from the U.S. side.

Panama President Robert Chirari prepared to address the nation after a telephone talk with U.S. President Johnson in Washington. Chirari already has accused the United States of aggression and has suspended diplomatic relations.

The Panama radio carried repeated pleas to the people to return to their homes and thus prevent further bloodshed. A statement broadcast at 12:15 p.m. EST described the situation in the capital as "tranquil."

National guard troops were guarding U.S. buildings which were attacked Thursday night. Stones were thrown at the Chase Manhattan Bank building this morning.

One radio broadcast appealed to Panamanians not to heed calls for rebellion by "agitators."

U.S. Accused Of Aggression

NEW YORK (AP)—Aquino Boyd, the Panamanian ambassador to the United Nations, today accused the United States of aggression against his country.

Arriving at Kennedy Airport, Boyd said Panama plans to appeal to the United Nations and to the Organization of American States.

Discussing the rioting at the Canal Zone Thursday night, Boyd said:

"This situation is very, very serious. I am ashamed of American democracy. We are the victims of a terrible aggression. The people of the United States are not properly informed of the situation in Panama."

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Organization of American States called an emergency meeting of its council today to consider the Panamanian crisis.

13-Year-Old Cooped Up With Slayers

Mental disorders can often be cured or alleviated if treatment is given when the patients are young—yet there are few mental health facilities for children.

Times reporter Leslie Millin interviewed social workers, psychologists, psychiatrists and patients' families to prepare this three-part series on the predicament of Victoria children stricken with mental disorders.

By LESLIE MILLIN

A Victoria foster mother last year had to make a personal plea to Health Minister Eric Martin to have her foster son moved from one ward of Essondale Mental Hospital to another.

The 13-year-old boy had been confined in a ward for the criminally insane—with murderers, rapists and other dangerously deranged criminals.

He was put there because Essondale has no wards for children.

Jerry is 14 now, still in Essondale, and still in a ward with adult patients.

He is one of many Victoria children whose chances of recovery from mental disease are reduced by a lack of facilities for children.

Jerry is in the unluckiest category of all.

He is a psychotic, and there are no facilities specifically for psychotic children anywhere in the province.

For a Victoria child with a mental disorder—the outlook is poor. Emotionally disturbed children—there are an estimated 1,400 in Victoria—can go to Sevenoaks here. It has 16 beds.

Retarded children who are not too seriously retarded can attend the special school here, and the Elford Occupation Centre. Badly retarded children must go to Woodlands School on the

Columbia Accord Reached

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin today presented the federal cabinet with yet another B.C.-Ottawa agreement on Columbia River development.

The latest draft agreement deals with the terms under which B.C.'s share of downstream Columbia power benefits would be sold to the Americans, rather than returned for use in B.C.

Mr. Martin said he expected the agreement to receive speedy cabinet approval.

The external affairs minister described the proposed agreement as a supplement to an agreement reached last summer between B.C. and the federal government. That agreement outlined the responsibilities borne by both the federal and B.C. governments in carrying out terms of the three-year-old Canada-U.S. Columbia development treaty.

The "downstream benefit" agreement is rumored to contain provision for payment by the U.S. of a lump sum of about $400 million to cover the costs of the dams to be built on the B.C. section of the international river.

The B.C. dams would control the flows of Columbia water to the U.S., enabling U.S. generating installations on the river to increase their electricity output. The U.S. also would pay $64.4 million for flood control benefits.

DAY AND NIGHT

Mr. Martin met all day Wednesday and Thursday—and into both nights, too—with B.C. Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston and B.C. Attorney-General Robert Bonner, and their advisors, to draw up the agreement.

Mr. Martin said today that the B.C. cabinet also would consider the supplementary agreement. It is also expected to approve the pact soon.

Endorsement of the agreement by both B.C. and Ottawa will clear the way for final agreement on the development between Canada and the U.S.

Mr. Martin and B.C. representatives will meet with U.S. spokesmen here on Monday.

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—Conscription has become an issue again in Westminster and neither political party is particularly happy about it.

A trio of recent crises—Cyprus, Aden and Malaysia—proved that Britain's 180,000-man, all-volunteer army is under considerable strain in terms of resources and manpower.

To begin with, army units are under strength and inadequately staffed with technicians. Despite a massive publicity campaign waged since conscription ended in 1960, the quality and quantity of recruits have left gaps in the line.

With the conflict against Indonesia in North Borneo threatening to develop into a protracted guerrilla war, Britain has told NATO that she may be forced to withdraw troops from Germany to meet her Far East commitments.

The British Army of the Rhine already is weaker than most NATO strategists would like.

Some form of conscription will be necessary if Britain is to go on policing such trouble spots as British Guiana, Swaziland and Hong Kong as well as the more explosive areas like Cyprus and North Borneo. There just aren't enough Tomnies to go round.

But Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home would be loath to reintroduce such an unpopular measure during an election year and Labor Leader Harold Wilson is equally opposed to such a move. What is the answer?

The Conservatives now must hope that the United Nations, or some other policing agency, will step in to hold in the ring opponents in Cyprus and settle matters in Malaysia before both commitments drain all the British reserves.

IN THE TEETH OF FAMOUS PROFILES

By JAMES CALOGERO
BOSTON (AP)—Dr. Harvey Peck, 26 and single, is a girl watcher with a cause: He's looking for the perfect face.

Peck has been studying girls' faces for a year. He still has a year to go on his project. Nonetheless, Peck has reached some tentative conclusions, to wit:

"American and international beauties have a tendency toward a toothy, full profile, rather than a straight profile."

A "toothy, full profile" is sort of a pout. Perfect examples of the type, says Peck, are Sophia Loren, Brigitte Bardot and Doris Day.

They lack the orthognathic profile, he says. On the other hand, there's nothing whatever wrong with the vertical and forward growth of their mandibles.

Or, to put it another way, they don't have straight-line profiles, but their jaw bones are lovely, just lovely.

Now Peck wants it understood that a pretty pout is not a prerequisite for beauty. For example, there's Grace Kelly, Elizabeth Taylor and Debbie Reynolds. They have straight-line profiles.

EXAMINES 25 WOMEN

So far, Peck has examined the faces of 25 women. None of the aforementioned lovelies was included, but he concentrates on recognized beauties such as models and beauty contest winners.

This is serious work for Peck, a resident orthodontist at the Boston University Medical Centre. He says results of his study, titled "A photographic and cephalometric study of facial symmetry and balance," may provide orthodontists with a guide to the ideal face.

Peck says it's possible to change the lower face profile of a child up to the age of 14 through orthodontic therapy. It is common practice, for example, to give a child with buck teeth a straight profile.

In addition, appliances may be used to alter vertical and horizontal growth direction of a child's jaw bones—the key to facial shape.

Peck hopes his research will produce a master chart that "will tell how well balanced are the faces of these people others look up to as beautiful."

Meal Tax to Stay Kiernan Comfirms

New Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan called Thursday for consideration of value rather than expense in service to tourists.

At the same time, he confirmed retention of the currently-controversial 5 per cent sales tax on restaurant meals costing more than $1.

On service to tourists, Mr. Kiernan said: "Offer them

SMALLEST SUGAR CROP IN 21 YEARS

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Cuba, once the world's greatest sugar bowl, will harvest her smallest crop in 21 years this year, exiled planters estimated today.

The harvest, just begun, was estimated at 3,000,000 metric tons on the basis of a survey by the Sugar Planters Association of Cuba in Exile. A metric ton is 2,200 pounds.

something different and make them feel glad they came here."

He assured a meeting of the Victoria and Southern Vancouver Island branch of B.C. Motels and Resorts Association he would give tourism its "fair share" of his attention.

The minister holds three portfolios—commercial transport, mines and petroleum resources, and recreation and conservation. He assumed the third after the defeat of former minister Earl Westwood.

Speaking also as a treasury board member, he said: "In making tax cutbacks, you have to find an alternate source of revenue or eliminate some service."

"Sales tax represents nearly $90,000,000 revenue."

FARES STAY

On possible reduction of fares on B.C. ferries, he said: "We have very heavy capital commitments on the ferry system. I can see no likelihood in the foreseeable future that the fares could be reduced so far as motor vehicles are concerned."

Mr. Kiernan asked tourist industry operators to encourage tourists to visit other parts of the province, and to get them to stay longer. He said there is no point in advertising if word-of-mouth is to spoil the effect.

'Harsh, Unreal Climate'

DALLAS, (UPI)—Jack Ruby's lawyers said Thursday they wanted his murder trial moved away from the "harsh and unreal" climate which they said was created by Dallas news media.

J. H. Tonahill of Jasper, Tex., said the defence could petition criminal-Dist. Judge Joe B. Brown Jan. 29, for a change of venue.

"There is a lot of feeling in Dallas," Tonahill said, "that Dallas is on trial and that might spill over into Mr. Ruby's situation."

Ruby, a 32-year-old dapper strip-tease club owner, dashed in front of national television cameras Nov. 24 and shot to death Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy.

RESEARCH UNDER WAY

Put Air Crashes on Tape?

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF, the National Research Council and Leigh Instruments Limited, Carleton Place, Ont., have launched a joint project to produce a method by which accident data recording equipment carried in aircraft may be recovered intact in event of a crash.

RCAF and NRC officials said such a system would be of major value in helping to determine causes of aircraft crashes such as the recent crash near Montreal of a Trans-Canada Air Lines DC-8F passenger plane with a loss of 118 lives. It also could lead to aircraft modifications to prevent future crashes.

If such a system can be developed, it will be possible to recover from a plane a magnetic tape recording showing how the aircraft was functioning prior to a crash.

An RCAF spokesman said tests with an experimental "accident data recorder—crash position indicator" will take place within a few weeks aboard an RCAF Yukon transport operating from Cold Lake, Alta.

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec Federation of Labor Wednesday submitted to the Lesage government a proposal for a compulsory provincial old age pension.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Bank Head Uncovers Hard Truths

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

W. Earle McLaughlin, chairman and president of the Royal Bank of Canada, performed a real service in his address Thursday to the bank's annual meeting by digging to the roots of some of this country's recent economic difficulties and exposing some of the common misconceptions regarding them.

Not everyone will agree, of course, with all of Mr. McLaughlin's arguments—particularly the reiteration of the argument against the fixed rate of exchange, persuasive though it is. But few will deny that he has been very perceptive in spotlighting the strategic areas of economic trouble.

MISCONCEPTION

The bank chief took as his main task the straightening out of popular, almost universal, misconception regarding the origin of Canada's balance-of-payments deficit on current account.

OILS

"You almost invariably hear," he said, "that Canada developed a large deficit on current account in the 1950s because Canadian resources were unable, or refused, to save from income what they wished to invest in plant and equipment. In order to have our cake and eat it too, we then, according to this popular version, imported the difference in the form of goods and services from abroad and paid for this excess of imports over exports by going in debt to foreign countries."

But, asks Mr. McLaughlin, is this actually true? Do Canadians first over-spend their income and then resort to borrowing, or did foreign investment itself bring about the current account deficit which so many today identify with chronic national insolvency?

ONE OF HIGHEST

His answer is that Canada did not first over-spend her income and then resort to foreign capital to pay the difference. Canada's rate of savings and investment had long been one of the highest in the world.

Arthur Mayse

In one of our well-treed Victoria suburbs lives a man who is infested by a woodpecker.

At earliest dawn, the little creature takes station on his house wall, close under the roof. After a few warmup taps, it launches into a tattoo that a regimental drummer might envy.

Sharp at 8:30, the feathered maestro ends his concert and flies away.

When he came to this corner for help—as if we didn't have troubles enough of our own—the afflicted householder made it plain that he had nothing against woodpeckers.

"We all of us love that noisy little bug-eater," he told me. "Even if it were legal to shoot him, I wouldn't dream of knocking him off."

"But he's already drilled through a plywood sheet and a two-by-two, and we're expecting him in the living room any day now. Then there's the noise. You know when we're trying to sleep in a last half-hour of sleep..."

Never having been infested by woodpeckers, I could only suggest that he sheath his house in aluminum siding. Either that, or leave his house to the bird and go live in a tree.

Neither choice pleased him, so we decided to seek counsel from Dr. Cliff Carl of the Provincial Museum, an authority on the ways of nature's children.

Dr. Carl came up with a solution quick as you can say "peckerwood."

Netting, he informed us, was the answer.

"You see," he explained, "the bird, which is almost certainly a flicker rather than a woodpecker, is not drilling for insects. It wants to make as much noise as it can, and has found an excellent sounding-board."

Why, we wanted to know, should the flicker behave in this unseemly fashion?

It could be courtship, we were told, although it's pretty early in the season for flickers to be heading out love-songs on the sides of people's houses. More likely the visitant was announcing to would-be intruders that here was his territory.

Or he could just like the sound of his own drumming, the ham.

In any case, wire screening or netting would discourage him.

"Except," Dr. Carl warned, "if this flicker really likes the house, you'll have to keep moving the screen."

The other morning I ate a hearty breakfast and set off for work at peace with the world.

At 10 o'clock I dropped in for coffee at a newsman's haunt and supplemented the brew with a fat yeast doughnut.

Just after 11, I tapped our office dispenser for the biggest chocolate bar a dime can buy, and an hour later, staked myself to a generous lunch. So it went for the rest of the day, nibble-nibble-nibble.

This, I'm told by others who have walked the same road, is what happens when you give up cigarette smoking. Your appetite improves. Eating becomes a pleasure instead of a casual taking of fuel.

That's all very well, but how long does this urge to gluttonize last? I'm not precisely skinny now, and at this rate, I'll be busting out all over with spring still weeks away.

The alternative, of course, is to resume smoking. But I've now put nine days between myself and the weed—longer, frankly, than I ever expected to endure.

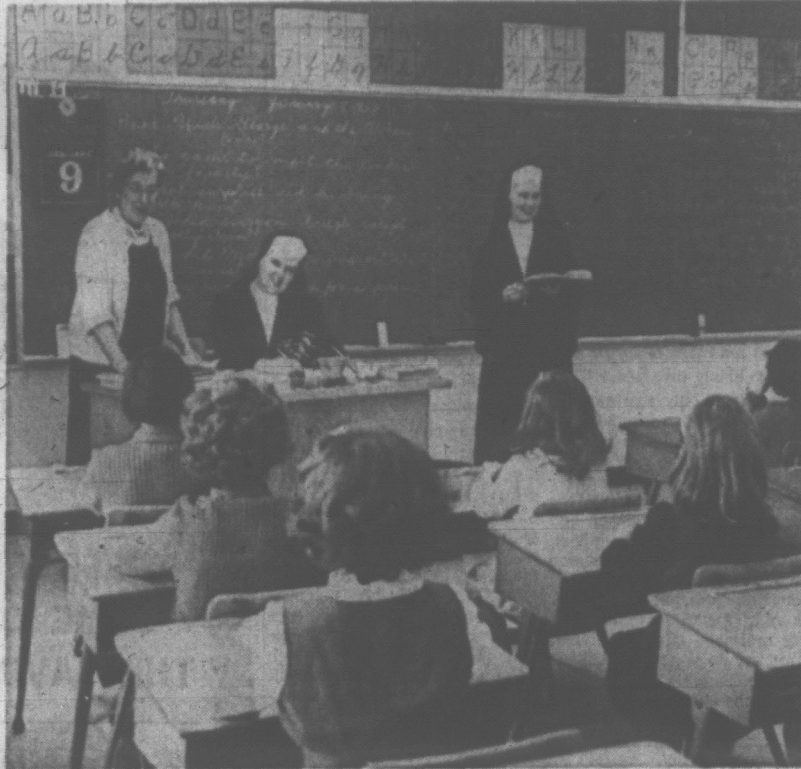

I may backslide, but believe me, I'd sooner not. Even now, I can go quite a long time, maybe 16 minutes, without thinking how nice it would be to light up and drag deep. Also, I'm learning who and what to watch out for.

The worst times, for a very new non-smoker, are after meals, at coffee-breaks, or when one relaxes in good company with drink in fist.

In other words, the times when a cigarette used to be most satisfying.

And the guy to watch out for isn't the one who puffs smoke in your face, leaves his pack lying handy, or asks how much longer you expect to stay off the habit.

He's the ex-smoker three years reformed who insists on letting you know in doleful tones that it never really grows easier!

Jury Suggests Street Light At Death Scene

A coroner's jury ruled today Mrs. Mae Preston, killed Oct. 29 in a Trans-Canada Highway collision, died accidentally.

They added a rider to the verdict urging that a mercury vapor light be installed at the Helmcken-Trans-Canada intersection.

Mrs. Preston, the young mother of four children, was returning with three married girl friends from an evening of bowling.

She was a front seat passenger in a car driven north on the highway by Mrs. Eileen Carter, 659 Kelly, when the small sedan was in collision with a car turning left off the highway onto Helmcken.

'CAME UPON ME'

John Herron, 4546 Stratford, driver of the other car involved, testified at the inquest he started to make his turn confident that he would be clear of the oncoming car.

"I took my eyes off the other car to make my turn, and when I got started round the corner the car came upon me quicker than I expected," he said.

Cons. M. G. Markell of Colwood RCMP said that when he got there, the small sedan was heavily damaged across the front and still in its proper northbound lane.

The other car was in the intersection facing west, and was damaged to the right front fender.

The weather was clear and the road was dry, said Cons. Markell, and the visibility was good—at least 500 yards.

Mrs. Carter, driver of the small sedan, told the inquest she saw the oncoming lights and assumed the car was going to pass until "I felt a burning in my eyes, and that's all I remember."

Mr. Herron testified that he had not stopped before making his turn, and had given a hand signal because his car was not equipped with flashing light signals.

Mrs. Preston died of brain damage and internal bleeding, testified Dr. Garth Walther, who performed the autopsy.

Stanley Goddard, 34, recently graduated from the University of Michigan with a bachelor of science degree.

The former Victoria High School student is now employed as a research engineer with the Corning Glass Company in Corning, New York.

He is the son of Mrs. Elsie Goddard, 919 Vancouver.

Quadra PTA will meet Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the school. Guest speaker is Dr. A. H. Batten of Victoria Dominion Astrophysical Observatory.

Victoria Bonsai Club will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Health and Welfare Building, 1947 Cook Street.

Members will have their potted plants judged in an informal contest.

A pedestrian injured in an accident with a car at Bay and Quadra this morning was discharged from hospital after treatment.

Edward Olivara, 34, of 2407 Vancouver Street, was treated for shock and bruises after the accident at 7:26 a.m.

Driver of the car involved was Edward Justus, 535 Joffre, police reported.

McPHERSON PLAYHOUSE Theatre Drawings 'Really Exciting'

Mayor R. B. Wilson today described working drawings for a $375,000 renovation and expansion of the old Pantages Theatre "a really exciting prospect."

Civic precinct committee approved the plans, drawn up by architect Alan J. Hodgson, and recommended formal adoption at next Thursday's council meeting to clear the way for a tender call.

Mayor Wilson also suggested that the theatre—bequeathed to the city by T. S. McPherson whose estate also will pay virtually the entire renovation cost—should be named McPherson Playhouse.

BARBER'S TRIAL

City Lacked Authority Says Lawyer

A city lawyer today cut through tangled legal undergrowth to try and undermine the city bylaw regulating barber shops.

If successful, his case would affect some other bylaws which the city has passed for the regulation of businesses.

A decision in the case will be given Jan. 24 by Magistrate William Ostler.

It involved Adolph Principe who is charged with opening his Mayfair Barber Shop on a Wednesday, contrary to Bylaw No. 4773. Mr. Principe's counsel, E. A. Popham, argued that the city had no power to pass the bylaw.

Mr. Popham said that when the bylaw was passed in 1958 the city thought it had the power to regulate barber shops under the Municipal Act. But he argued the city is bound by an earlier law, the 1919 Victoria City Act, and the powers conferred by the Municipal Act were therefore not conferred on city council.

Mr. Popham said that the city could not regulate barber shops under the 1919 act because this law makes no specific mention of barber shops.

If Mr. Popham wins the case it would mean that the city would be out on a legal limb in regards to any bylaw regulations about businesses which the city is not specifically empowered to regulate by the City Act.

Chief feature of the design is a large two-story foyer-entrance that will open on to Centennial Victoria Square and join a raised 66-seat restaurant by a second-storey bridge.

REDECORATED

Mr. Hodgson said the theatre structure itself will be redecorated in traditional crimson and gilt with some minor changes inside.

But besides priming up, complete re-wiring and installation of new heating, the building will remain unaltered because it is in good shape.

The 900 seats will be re-upholstered at a cost of up to $12 apiece rather than spending $40 each for new seats. The crushed velvet main curtain also is in excellent shape, requiring only cleaning—at a cost of $100 instead of the $10,000 a new curtain would have required.

The two-story foyer will provide ground-to-ceiling windows facing the centennial square and will permit closing doors that exist at present.

Patrons will arrive from the square on foot or from the Pandora curve by car to enter at the southeast corner into the ground floor lounge.

COFFEE BARS

A staircase will take them to the main lounge on the second floor where there will be two coffee and refreshment bars and a corridor leading to the restaurant sitting on columns and projecting into the square itself.

Mr. Hodgson said the foyer and theatre will also provide seating space, committee rooms, display areas and luncheon space for small conventions of up to 450 persons.

The present high exposed brick rear wall of the theatre will be covered with Boston Ivy in the same manner as the rear of City Hall.

Courthouse Step Closer At Duncan

The provincial cabinet has authorized purchase of a site for a new courthouse at Duncan for $65,250.

A cabinet order today authorizes purchase of two lots.

The property is owned by the city of Duncan.

IF RULES PERMIT

Number System Boon to Police

By PETE LOUDON

National registration of Canadian workers, planned this spring, could become a valuable police aid, Victoria Chief Constable John Gregory said today.

He said it will all depend on the wording of regulations covering the proposed assignment of social insurance numbers and pocket-sized identification cards.

Unless the regulations stipulate the registration system can only be used by employers and the social insurance department, the community of lawbreakers could find itself on the spot.

A man would no longer be able to disappear in Canada, not if he ever wants a job. And illegal immigrants would find it impossible to obtain work.

"It would be very valuable" if the law permits police to use social insurance numbers in making identifications, he thought.

The chief said he would like to see the system carried a step further and require pictures or fingerprints on every card.

"I've often thought a dogtag or bracelet would be invaluable, particularly in the identification of persons who have collapsed or of bodies found in the harbor."

"(National registration) would be useful, too, to the public in cashing cheques. Such a system could save the taxpayer a great deal of money every year," Chief Gregory added.

The federal government will issue a number to every employed person in Canada between April 1 and early July. The program, announced Monday by Labor Minister MacEachen, is the biggest of its kind since the national registration of the Second World War. At that time, every person over 16 was registered.

Worker registration by Unemployment Insurance Commission has been spotty. Teachers and agricultural workers, domestics, some part-time workers and all persons earning more than $5,460 are not covered by UIC nor are they registered.

All employees, insured under UIC or not, will be asked to fill in special forms. The approximately five million workers who come under UIC regulations will risk court action and fines if they refuse to provide the requested information.

The other employed persons, approximately 1,500,000 cannot be compelled to fill in forms according to preliminary advice from Ottawa. But Mr. MacEachen suggested the initial registration eventually will lead to a single numbering system for all people in Canada, young, old, rich, poor, employed or unemployed, at school or in the kitchen.

The system also opens up possibilities for use in compiling a permanent voters' list. The forms will ask a person's name, address, sex, birthday, mother's maiden name and father's first name.

The information will be punched on cards for electronic data processing.

Registration is to be carried out under authority of the National Employment Service offices. A spokesman at Victoria NES said the local office is already drawing up lists of all employers.

Seven officials from Vancouver NES offices are going to Ottawa Jan. 19 to be briefed on the huge task ahead.

PRIVATE BILLS

Realtors Seek Law To Raise Standards

By FRANK RUTTER

B.C. realtors are seeking a special act of the legislature to raise standards in their business.

It is one of six private bills to be presented to the House at the session starting Jan. 23. Each bill will be sponsored by a member of the Legislature.

The Real Estate Institute of B.C. wants a stronger status than its present one under the Societies Act.

Its proposed special act would enable the institute to set standards of ethics and competency, discipline members and conduct recognized university courses.

Irwin Davies, institute secretary, said the legislation would not give it the power to license realtors.

Herb Fullerton, Vancouver realtor who has been working on the legislation, said details would be released after a directors' meeting Monday.

"The aim is to raise the standards of practice and the vocation," he said.

At present the institute is not allowed to grant degrees under terms of the Societies Act.

The act also limits disciplining members to a maximum $5 fine.

The city of Vancouver will seek to amend its charter in another private bill.

It wants power to raise salaries for the mayor and aldermen.

Mayor William Rathle now gets $12,000 a year, aldermen $3,600.

They want $16,000 for the mayor and $4,800 for aldermen.

Another private bill will seek an amendment to the Shaughnessy Heights Building Restrictions Act which controls development of the Vancouver district.

The bill would allow housing development on land reserved for a bowling green.

Two insurance companies are seeking incorporation by special acts of the legislature. The B.C. Motorist Insurance Co. wants to provide auto, marine, fire and theft insurance.

United Home Mutual Insurance Co. wants to go into the life insurance field, and take over the operations of the United Home Security Association, presently governed by the Societies Act.

The sixth bill will come from the city of Prince Rupert which wants to amend an agreement under which the crown holds in trust lands of the old Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. The city wants to free the land for housing development.

The meeting, first of the year, will be held at Union Centre, 2750 Quadra, at 8 p.m.

Nominations will be taken before the election.

HIS HONOR, HIS PANTS, HER CATCH

A prowler ran off with a man's trousers early today but the man's wife took up the chase and recovered them.

There was $200 in the pants, belonging to Magistrate H. Elliott of Regina, Sask. He and Mrs. Elliott were asleep in their room at Bel Isle Motel, 427 Belleville, when a prowler entered through the unlocked door.

He crept over the carpeted floor, lifted the magistrate's pants and was on his way out when Mrs. Elliott awakened. She shouted and the thief ran.

Mrs. Elliott jumped out of bed after the thief who panicked and dropped the trousers at the doors of the elevator. He escaped before police arrived.

Protection Racket Charged

The provincial labor department has been asked to investigate charges of a protection racket in a Vancouver restaurant.

"We have been advised that girls employed in a Vancouver restaurant have been approached to hand over a portion of their tips and wages as payola," E. P. O'Neal, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said today.

He said it "could become a matter for the police."

Mr. O'Neal and some of the girls met Al Little, supervisor of the B.C. labor department office, in Vancouver Thursday.

"The labor department is checking the whole affair," Mr. O'Neal said.

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said he knows nothing of the charges at present.

STATEMENTS

Mr. O'Neal said he had signed statements about the charges.

But he declined to identify the restaurant or the person who allegedly sought money from its waitresses.

"It wasn't the Mafia," Mr. O'Neal said, "but we believe it was a person known to the management of the restaurant."

Mr. O'Neal said he has information that the girls were asked to pay $2 per shift "to somebody else."

"They refused but agreed to give $1."

RETURNED

"The next night the money was returned and they were told it was not worth while."

"Then it was suggested they pool their tips and a certain percentage would be taken."

"They were told unless they agreed they might lose their jobs."

Mr. O'Neal said one of the employees at the restaurant phoned to tell him about the situation and he took it up with the government.

Ask The Times

Q. When the 1962 Grey Cup Cup was played in the fog in Toronto, did the people decide to finish the game the same day, play another game the next day or finish the game the next day? If they finished the game the same day or the next day how many minutes did they play? J. A.

A. Game was completed the following day with 9:26 remaining to be played. There was no scoring during this time and Winnipeg outlasted Hamilton 28-7.

Q. Is there a city bylaw or regulation which prevents hedges or bushes from protruding beyond private property limits?

A. Yes; the bylaw states that property owners must keep hedges, shrubs, etc., trimmed so they will not obstruct the visibility of pedestrian or vehicular traffic.

MUTTS UNLIMITED

Ruffy Announces His Caninedacy

By MONTE ROBERTS

Any mutt who can claim to be a cockerspoolterier is a lot of mutt. And "Ruffy," whose residence is at the home of Mrs. Diane Brown, 3895 Scolton Road, is a genuine cocker-what-we-said.

Which makes him a prime caninedate for a leading role in the television comedy series Petticoat Junction.

Dick Wesson of Hollywood, producer of the series, is looking for a non-pedigree, non-descript, nonentity in the world of dogdom to add a little non-class to the series.

In the interest of mutts everywhere, The Times is co-operating by collecting pictures of the muttiest mutts in this area, and sending them to Mr. Wesson.

He'll choose the likeliest as a candidate—excuse, caninedate—for casting in Petticoat Junction.

If you have a mutt you think might make it, TV-wise, send a snapshot (black and white), to: Mutts Unlimited, Victoria Times, Victoria, B.C.

We guarantee the photo will reach Hollywood. From then on, the personality of your pup will tell the tale.

Mental disorders can often be cured or alleviated if treatment is given when the patients are young—yet there are few mental health facilities for children.

Times reporter Leslie Millin interviewed social workers, psychologists, psychiatrists and patients' families to prepare this three-part series on the predicament of Victoria children stricken with mental disorders.

By LESLIE MILLIN

A Victoria foster mother last year had to make a personal plea to Health Minister Eric Martin to have her foster son moved from one ward of Essondale Mental Hospital to another.

The 13-year-old boy had been confined in a ward for the criminally insane—with murderers, rapists and other dangerously deranged criminals.

He was put there because Essondale has no wards for children.

Jerry is 14 now, still in Essondale, and still in a ward with adult patients.

He is one of many Victoria children whose chances of recovery from mental disease are reduced by a lack of facilities for children.

Jerry is in the unluckiest category of all.

He is a psychotic, and there are no facilities specifically for psychotic children anywhere in the province.

For a Victoria child with a mental disorder—any mental disorder—the outlook is poor.

Emotionally disturbed children—there are an estimated 1,400 in Victoria—can go to Sevenoaks here. It has 16 beds.

Draft Issue Rears in U.K.
As 3 Crises Strain Army

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—Conscription has become an issue again in Westminster and neither political party is particularly happy about it.

A trio of recent crises—Cyprus, Aden and Malaysia—proved that Britain's 180,000-man, all-volunteer army is under considerable strain in terms of resources and manpower.

To begin with, army units are under strength and inadequately staffed with technicians. Despite a massive publicity campaign waged since conscription ended in 1960, the quality and quantity of recruits have left gaps in the line.

With the conflict against Indonesia in North Borneo threatening to develop into a protracted guerrilla war, Britain has told NATO that she may be forced to withdraw troops from Germany to meet her Far East commitments.

The British Army of the Rhine already is weaker than most NATO strategists would like.

Some form of conscription will be necessary if Britain is to go on policing such trouble spots as British Guiana, Swaziland and Hong Kong as well as the more explosive areas like Cyprus and North Borneo. There just aren't enough Tommies to go round.

But Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home would be loathe to reintroduce such an unpopular measure during an election year and Labor Leader Harold Wilson is equally opposed to such a move. What is the answer?

The Conservatives now must hope that the United Nations, or some other policing agency, will step in to hold in the ring opponents in Cyprus and settle matters in Malaysia before both commitments drain all the British reserves.

OTTAWA—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin today presented the federal cabinet with yet another B.C.-Ottawa agreement on Columbia River development.

The latest draft agreement deals with the terms under which B.C.'s share of downstream Columbia power benefits would be sold to the Americans, rather than returned for use in B.C.

Mr. Martin said he expected the agreement to receive speedy cabinet approval.

watcher with a cause: He's looking for the perfect face.

Peck has been studying girls' faces for a year. He still has a year to go on his project. Nonetheless, Peck has reached some tentative conclusions, to wit:

"American and international beauties have a tendency toward a toothy, full profile, rather than a straight profile."

A "toothy, full profile" is sort of a pout. Perfect examples of the type, says Peck, are Sophia Loren, Brigitte Bardot and Doris Day.

They lack the orthognathic profile, he says. On the other hand, there's nothing whatever wrong with the vertical and forward growth of their mandibles.

Or, to put it another way, they don't have straight-line profiles, but their jaw bones are lovely, just lovely.

Now Peck wants it understood that a pretty pout is not a prerequisite for beauty. For example, there's Grace Kelly, Elizabeth Taylor and Debbie Reynolds. They have straight-line profiles.

EXAMINES 25 WOMEN

So far, Peck has examined the faces of 25 women. None of the aforementioned lovelies was included, but he concentrates on recognized beauties such as models and beauty contest winners.

This is serious work for Peck, a resident orthodontist at the Boston University Medical Centre. He says results of his study, titled "a photographic and cephalometric study of facial symmetry and balance," may provide orthodontists with a guide to the ideal face.

Peck says it's possible to change the lower face profile of a child up to the age of 14 through orthodontic therapy. It is common practice, for example, to give a child with buck teeth a straight profile.

In addition, appliances may be used to alter vertical and horizontal growth direction of a child's jaw bones—the key to facial shape.

Peck hopes his research will produce a master chart that "will tell how well balanced are the faces of these people others look up to as beautiful."

PANAMA CITY (AP)—Panama broke relations with the United States today.

The foreign minister, Galileo Solis, cabled U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk that his country considers its relations with Washington broken as a result of the fighting over the issue of flying the Panamanian and U.S. flags.

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The United Nations Security Council was summoned to an urgent session at 9:30 p.m. EST Friday to deal with the disorders in Panama.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Panama agreed today to have the Inter-American Peace Commission try to mediate their dispute in the Panama Canal Zone, it was announced officially.

A spokesman for the commission said the five-member group will fly tonight to Panama.

The commission is an advisory body to the Organization of American States. One of its main tasks is the maintenance of peace through conciliation.

The decision was reached at an hour-long closed meeting of the commission.

PANAMA CITY (UPI)—Mobs battled U.S. army troops along the canal zone border today and Panamanian President Robert F. Chiari threatened to renounce all treaties with the United States, presumably including use of the vitally strategic Panama Canal.

PANAMA CITY (AP)—Five Panamians were reported killed and 96 wounded in new gun fighting today with U.S. troops on the border of the U.S. Canal Zone. This brought the death toll in the violence which erupted Thursday night to 15, including three U.S. soldiers.

Personnel of the U.S. Embassy evacuated the chancery building offices in the wake of the violent fighting, Carl Davis, embassy public affairs officer, said. Davis said secret documents were burned.

Panama President Robert Chiari prepared to address the nation after a telephone talk with U.S. President Johnson in Washington. Chiari already has accused the United States of aggression and has suspended diplomatic relations.

The Panama radio carried repeated pleas to the people to return to their homes and thus prevent further bloodshed.

A statement broadcast at 12:15 p.m. EST described the situation in the capital as "tranquil."

Public Transportation Out

There was no public transportation in Panama, where an air of tension still prevailed on a day of mourning for those killed.

The fighting flared Thursday night when Panamanian students tried to plant their country's flag in the U.S.-controlled Canal Zone. They acted after U.S. students raised the flag in defiance of American officials.

Chiara demanded that the Organization of American States launch an immediate investigation.

He vowed "to obtain justice for Panama once and for all" before whatever international bodies are necessary.

President Johnson was being kept advised of the situation.

The U.S. Army said its casualties occurred in the vicinity of the Tivoli Guest House in the Canal Zone, a target of persistent sniper fire from Panamanians.

When the U.S. casualties mounted to four wounded, an army statement said, "the order was given to return the sniper fire."

The army selected trained marksmen "for carefully returned fire," and six U.S. soldiers were wounded "before the sniper fire ceased."

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson dispatched an emergency mission to the Canal Zone today shortly after conferring by telephone with Panamanian President Roberto F. Chiari on the boiling crisis which flared into bloodshed there.

The mission was headed by Johnson's key Latin American adviser, assistant secretary of state Thomas Mann.

One radio broadcast appealed to Panamanians not to heed calls for rebellion by "agitators."

Army officials said none of their forces entered Panama territory during three to four hours of severe exchange of gunfire.

Rioting Panamanians attacked U.S. buildings in Panama City and Colon. They hurled stones and set fires. Damage ran into the thousands of dollars.

Traffic through the canal was not affected, but tension remained high in the morning hours.

This is the U.S. Army version of the chain of events:

At 4 p.m. Thursday Panamanian students entered the Canal Zone and planted the flag of Panama on the grounds of the Balboa High School ment as a supplement to an agreement reached last summer between B.C. and the federal government. That agreement outlined the responsibilities borne by both the federal and B.C. governments in carrying out terms of the three-year-old Canada-U.S. Columbia development treaty.

The "downstream benefit" agreement is rumored to contain provision for payment by the U.S. of a lump sum of about $400 million to cover the costs of the dams to be built on the B.C. section of the international river.

The B.C. dams would control the flows of Columbia water to the U.S., enabling U.S. generating installations on the river to increase their electricity output. The U.S. also would pay $64.4 million for flood control benefits.

DAY AND NIGHT

Mr. Martin met all day Wednesday and Thursday and into both nights, too—with B.C. Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston and B.C. Attorney-General Robert Bonner, and their advisors, to draw up the agreement.

Mr. Martin said today that the B.C. cabinet also would consider the supplementary agreement. It is also expected to approve the pact soon.

Endorsement of the agreement by both B.C. and Ottawa will clear the way for final agreement on the development between Canada and the U.S.

Mr. Martin and B.C. representatives will meet with U.S. spokesmen here on Monday.

'CAN'T KEEP UP'

Slayer's Children Lose Mother

VANCOUVER (CP)—Five little children who will lose their father to the hangman March 17, have now been abandoned by their mother, social welfare officials disclosed today.

The five are Gary, 6, Mary Ann, 5, Denny, 4, Kathy, 3, and a baby boy, not quite two, who officials said were born into a fractured life of poverty, misery and heart-break which resulted from the marriage union of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Meeker.

Meeker, 30, is to be hanged March 17 for the brutal slaying of 12-year-old Alice Mathers of Mission last June. Their mother, attractive, 26-year-old Lillian Meeker, supported the children on social welfare after leaving her husband 21 months ago.

But today the little Meeker children don't even have their mother.

Officials disclosed that she abandoned them in a rented home at Cranbrook two days before Christmas. She left a handwritten note with a neighbor saying:

"Please call the welfare to take the kids. I can't keep up with it all now."

2. Apologize to the Panamanian government.
3. Make proper indemnification for all damage to property and persons.
4. Work out an agreement which will be basically fair to the people of Panama.
